TOILET SEAT COVER . . . 'Go Big Red' item.

Go Big Red Fever Sells Anything Red And White

The symptoms of Go Big Red fever are showing up at many Lincoln department stores and its contagion is such that the green stuff is beginning to fly from the fingers of customers entering the door.

Merchandise, catering to the susceptible, is rapidly filling counters with its distinctive red color.

And what can you buy? Well, let's try just a short list of items available:

Mugs, decals, pennants, beverage glasses, stadium blankets, miniature hats, buttons, pens, key chains, raincoats, jackets, pewter tankards, scarfs, caps, ponchos, door mats, coats, hats, ties, women's jewelry, men's jewelry, lapel pins, Cornhusker helmet lamps, T-shirts, sweaters, ash trays, coasters and a rather ubiquitous looking toilet seat cover.

The red toilet seat cover has a big "No. 1" displayed when the cover is down and when the cover is up, it displays "Go Big Red" Red and white toilet seats are also available.

A clerk in one of the downtown department stores remarked that "almost anything with red" sells when game time comes.

The National Bank of Commerce has already given away 420,000 bumper stickers since January 1971 and is planning on another big rush this year.

Jack Goodwin, the vice president in charge of advertising at the bank, said people write letters "from all over the world," requesting the bumper stickers.

The fever, if not entirely international, certainly has a national flavor. Goodwin said the Nebraska Alumni Association of California requested 1,000 bumper stickers.

The bank has also initiated a promotion campaign with a "Little Red" doll that gives Go Big Red cheers. One bank official said initial response had been good with requests for the doll averaging about 60 per day.

Pat Burt, a security man for Miller & Paine, said that last year "we sold down to the bare boards." He indicated items were still selling this summer and the store was packing its warehouse for another heavy attack of "Go Big Red" fever.

So, could we say that "Go Big Red" fever will never die, it'll be around as long as Devaney, Osborne, and . . .?

Three Reformatory Inmates Still Sought By Authorities

The search continued Tuesday night for three of nine inmates of the Nebraska Men's Reformatory who escaped Tuesday afternoon by forcing a utility foreman at knife-point to transport them to Omaha.

Five men reportedly turned themselves in to Omaha authorities when the reformatory bus, normally used for transporting trustys locally, broke down in south Omaha.

A sixth man, Richard Richtig, 20, Omaha, was apprehended by detectives on patrol in South Omaha. Police said Richtig, was in a state of intoxication and offered no resistance to officers when arrested while walking along a street. He was serving a 2-4 year burglary sentence.

The hostage, Ted Runge, 29, was released unharmed in Omaha.

Capt. Albert E. Nance, State Penal Complex correctional supervisor, said Gerald Funk was apparently the prisoner who originally threatened Runge. Funk, 18, was serving 1-5 years for committing larceny from a person.

The three men still at large, according to Deputy Warden L. B. Davis, are Funk; Jay C. Ray, 18, of Omaha, serving a 1-2 year term for grand larceny; and Martin Hayes, 19, of Lincoln, serving a 1-1½ year term for grand larceny.

The five who apparently made no effort to escape after the bus stopped near the Martha Street viaduct in South Omaha were listed as Nathaniel Moore, 18; Steve Fentress, 20; Joel R. Evans, 20; Jerry C. Bayliff, 22; and Quentin L. Haroldson, 20. All five are from Omaha.

They are being held temporarily in the Omaha City Jail. Richtig was also being held in Omaha.

Authorities pieced together this account:

The bus, driven by Runge, was leaving the reformatory to take the ten prisoners to a work detail at the penitentiary's south dairy farm.

Davis said the bus was "coming out of the entrance when one of the inmates put a knife to the throat of Mr. Runge and said, 'We're going to Omaha.'" Police said it was a corn knife.

Kellogg got off the bus shortly after that, it was reported.

Runge then drove nine prisoners to Omaha where the bus broke down near an area where several prisoners are assigned on a work release program, police said.

Ray, Hayes, Funk and Richtig escaped at that time. Funk took the hostage with him to his mother's home nearby and changed into civilian clothes. He then fled, leaving Runge behind. Runge said he tried to stop Funk, but was unsuccessful.

Another man who disappeared from his quarters in the reformatory Monday evening turned himself in to Omaha Police Tuesday.

He was Stephen G. Hurley, 18, who was serving a 6-8 year robbery sentence from Douglas County.

NIXON RENOMINATED

McCloskey Gets 1 Vote

. . . 'Four More Years'

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon's Republican National Convention nominated President Nixon Tuesday night for a second term in the White House, then cheered in a flag-waving celebration.

Red, white and blue balloons cascaded from nets above the convention floor as the Republicans chanted "four more years" and waved their standards and Nixon placards.

The convention vote was exactly as expected: Nixon, 1,347; Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr. of California, 1.

Throngs of demonstrators rallied in the rainy streets outside the convention hall, jostling delegates when they could. But inside, the keynote was harmony, unity and ceremony.

Earlier in the day, Nixon had come to Miami and gone to his Key Biscayne home across the bay.

He appears before the convention Wednesday night to accept the nomination and formally launch his campaign against Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic challenger.

It was Nixon's third Republican presidential nomination, and the polls rank him the heavy favorite to make it his second successful one. Nixon lost the 1960 election to the late President John F. Kennedy.

Wrapping up preliminary business earlier Tuesday, the convention adopted rules that bequeath 1976 convention strength to party conservatives, and approved a platform designed by the White House.

Nixon's name was placed in nomination by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, an old political rival turned ally. And his was the only name entered.

Rockefeller said Nixon "has brought us to the threshhold of a generation of peace." He said Nixon is working and planning "for a century of peace ahead."

"We need this man of action, this man of accomplishment, this man of experience, this man of courage," the New York governor said. "We need this man of faith in America."

Nixon flew to Miami, and went on to Key Biscayne to watch the renomination ceremony, and prepare for the triumphant Wednesday night convention appearance with which he will accept it.

In the streets outside the convention the tempo of demonstrations mounted.

At least 212 youthful demonstrators were arrested after they blocked intersections, jostled passersby, and banged on automobiles.

About 1,000 protesters marched on the Fontainebleau Hotel, the convention headquarters, blocking traffic on Collins Avenue. That demonstration ended without incident, the marchers finally straggling away.

Wrapping up their preliminary business, the convention adopted rules that bequeath 1976 convention strength to party conservatives, and approved a platform designed by the White House.

Eleven supporters, ranging in philosophy from conservative Republican Sen. James L. Buckley of New York to Walter F. Hickel, ousted as Nixon's secretary of the interior, to Mrs. Henry Maier, wife of the Democratic mayor of Milwaukee, seconded the President's nomination.

Rockefeller told delegates newly equipped with state-by-state Nixon campaign placards that the President's policies are bringing "a new era of peacetime prosperity."

He said Nixon has revised national priorities without sacrificing national security or world leadership.

"This is skilled management and leadership of a high order," Rockefeller said.

He said that while others despaired, Nixon has worked to end the Vietnam war, stood firm in the Middle East, traveled to Peking and Moscow, and negoiated arms limitations.

"This country and the world need the continued leadership of our President," said Rockefeller, who has been the object of speculation as a possible secretary of state in a second-term Nixon Cabinet.

At the airport, it was all Niron, no dissent.

"Based on what I've seen on television and what I've heard about this convention, those who had predicted the other side was going to win the youth vote were wrong," Nixon said. "We're going to win them."

"Four more years, the crowd chorused.

"I dont know anyone who has a better idea," said the President. Nixon went to his retreat at Key Biscayne to watch his renomination on television.

He appears before the convention Wednesday night to formally launch with his acceptance speech the campaign against Democratic challenger George McGovern.

Nebraska Delegation Votes With Winning Side On Rules

By DON WALTON
Star StaffWriter

Miami Beach — Nebraska voted with the winning side Tuesday as the Republican National Convention adopted a future delegate apportionment formula protecting the traditional power of the smaller conservative states.

Congressman Charles Thone of Lincoln, chairman of the Nebraska delegation, cast all of the state's 16 delegate votes against the alternative plan which would have increased voting strength in the larger industrial states.

Only seven eastern states joined by Ohio, Michigan and Minnesota cast a majority of their delegate votes for the defeated plan.

Joined In Vote

Nebraske delegates joined in giving loud voice vote approval to the rules committee's own amended compromise plan which, in effect, will slightly increase Nebraska's strength at future Republican conventions.

"It's high time we in the small states whose power and authority is being eroded draw the line in the dust and say, look, this is enough," former Gov. Norbert Tiemann earlier told a caucus of the Nebraska delegation.

Tiemann served on the rules committee along with Mrs. Haven Smith of Chappell.

Under the committee proposal adopted by the convention, Nebraska could qualify for as many as 26 votes at the 1976 GOP convention.

In a greatly enlarged delegate count also approved for the 1976 conclave, Nebraska's relative voting strength would be slightly greater than the power of its current 16-member delegation.

Bonus delegates are awarded for carrying the state for the Republican presidential nominee, and for electing a Republican senator, governor and members of the House of Representatives.

Party Effort

The plan awards "party effort rather than population," Tiemann said.

While the Democratic Party is presently "in chaos and disarray" as a result of its reforms broadening the base of party participation Tiemann said, its actions will "be of benefit down the road."

But, Tiemann said, he would advocate a policy of inclusion rather than quota. The quota system adopted by the Democrats is "tragic," he suggested.

The party platform was also adopted Tuesday with the voice vote support of the Nebraska delegation.

With Majority

State Sen. W. H. Hasebroock of West Point, Nebraska's sole member on the credentials committte, said he voted with the committee majority against Congressman Pete McCloskey's plea that the convention seat his lone delegate from New Mexico.

The committee decided instead to seat a full slate of Nixon supporters from New Mexico but directed the delegation to cast one vote for McCloskey in the presidential balloting, as requested by state law. The California congressman won the right to that vote in the New Mexico primary election last June.

Hasebroock, who is speaker of the Nebraska Legislature, said he voted to uphold the state law.

World Council Of Churches Exerts Economic Pressure

©The New York Times

Utrecht, The Netherlands — The World Council of Churches voted overwhelmingly Tuesday night to liquidate its financial stake in all corporations doing business with white-ruled African countries.

The decision taken by the council's 120 member policymaking committee could oblige the church agency to sell off its entire investment of $3.5 million in company stocks, the committees finance unit said.

By its action the committee hoped to set an example for its more than 250 Protestant and Eastern Orthodox member churches in the fight aganst racism.

A council official said that a preliminary study indicated that the council's holdings in some 18 United States corporations would be affected by the selloff.

The corporations were not named, but Baldwin Sjollema head of the council's program to combat racism, later identified these firms with investments in South Africa or Angola as being among those whose shares are held by the council: Chrysler Corporation, General Electric Co., Polaroid Corp., Ford Motor Co., Monsanto Corp., Squib Beechnut Co., Merck and Co., Atlantic Richfield, Burroughs Ltd., Black and Decker, Halliburton and Co., Johnson and Johnson, International Business Machines, Tenneeco, Texaco, Minnesota Mining, Upjohn Co., and Gulf Oil.

The committee followed up its action on shareholdings by decreeing that none of the council's funds are to be deposited in banks that "maintain direct banking operations" in the African countries with white regimes.

The decision to liquidate the council's shareholdings in companies "directly involved in investment in or trade with" South Africa, Rhodesia and the Portuguese African territories of Guinea, Mozambique and Angola was meant to symbolize dramatically the agency's "commitment to combat racism."

While not questioning this commitment, the central committee's finance unit opposed the selloff. The group noted that the sweeping terms of the committee decision would preclude investment in companies whose activity in the incriminated countries was only a very small part of their business.

The finance unit said it was unconvinced that the refusal to hold shares in companies operating in these countries was the "most effective strategy of investment action in order to bring maximum pressure on the minority regimes in southern Africa."

New York Times News Summary

President Nixon Is Formally Renominated

(c) New York Times News Service

Miami Beach —The Republican National Convention moved to the formal and jubilant renomination of President Nixon in an atmosphere of unclouded confidence in his reelection for another term in November. Hardly a murmur of opposition was heard, and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, an old rival, rendered the ultimate tribute by placing the President's name in nomination. (More On Page 1)

Power Realignment Rejected

Miami Beach —The convention decisively defeated a formula that would have given urban and more liberal regions greater influence on the 1976 Republican presidential nomination. Following an hour of quiet debate, the delegates voted 910 to 434 against such a future power realignment and approved instead a delegate formula backed by conservatives, favoring smaller states. Eight Die In Bomb Blast

Belfast —A bomb went off in a customs station at Newry, Northern Ireland, killing eight people, including the two men who apparently planted it. Also dead were five customs inspectors and a truck driver. A policeman called the blast "another bungle by the IRA." (More On Page 2)

Demonstrators Are Arrested

Churches Set Example

Utrecht, The Netherlands — The World Council of Churches decided to set an example for its member churches in the fight against racism by selling off its investments in companies doing business with white-ruled countries in Africa. The council was said to own $3.5 million worth of stocks in more than a dozen United States corporations covered by the decision. (More On Page 1.)

Rhodesia Out Of Olympics

Munich —Political pragmatism gained the upper hand in Munich when the International Olympic Committee voted to cancel its invitation to Rhodesia to compete in the upcoming Olympiad. The decision is expected to head off a boycott of the games by African and other black athletes. (More On Page 45.)

17th Game Is Adjourned

Consumer Prices Rise

(C) Washington Star-News

Washington — Consumer prices rose 0.4% last month — the sharpest increase since February — primarily because of surging food prices, the Labor Department reported Tuesday.

Almost two-thirds of the increase in the over-all Consumer Price Index resulted from a 1% rise in food prices, led by meat.

The Nixon administration had predicted that an acceleration of retail price increases would follow earlier rises at the wholesale level. However, wholesale meat prices have passed their peak, so retail food prices should stabilize or decline within a couple of months, officials have said.

In another report, the department said the purchasing power of rank-and-file workers nationally — as measures by after-tax weekly earnings adjusted for price increases — in July was 0.3% above June and 4.3% above July, 1971.

Nationally, the Consumer Price Index in July rose 0.4% on both an absolute basis and computed to discount seasonal influences.

This compared with increases in June of only 0.2% unadjusted and 0.1% seasonally adjusted. The Nixon administration had hailed the June figures as evidence that inflation was abating.

The July increase was the biggest since February, when prices rose 0.5% unadjusted and 0.6% seasonally adjusted.

Within the over-all index, food prices last month rose 1% in absolute terms and 0.6% seasonally adjusted — also the sharpest increases since February. Food prices had risen 0.6% unadjusted and 0.2% seasonally adjusted in June.

Prices of food purchased in stores for home consumption spurted 1.2% unadjusted and 0.8% seasonally adjusted from June to July. Restaurant and snack prices rose 0.3% unadjusted and 0.2% seasonally adjusted.

By far the biggest element in the food price surge was the broad category of meats, poultry and fish, which rose 2.8% unadjusted and 2.1% seasonally adjusted, to a level 10.1% above July, 1971.

Nationally, prices of products other than food were unchanged and rose 0.3% seasonally adjusted.

Seated Worker Wasn't Begging

He placed the cup beside him and closed his eyes against the glare of the hot sun.

At that point, an elderly woman passed by, paused and dropped a quarter into the astonished man's half-filled coffee cup.

Task Force Advances Slowly In Que Son Valley

Saigon (AP) — A South Vietnamese task force advanced slowly Tuesday in the Que Son Valley, through which the enemy forces stormed last weekend to menace Da Nang and the populous coastal plain.

The 3,000-man force was reported whin four miles of Fire Base Ross, the major valley strongpoint lost in the North Vietnamese drive.

South Vietnamese spokesmen claimed that in two days of the counterthrust government ground forces and allied air strikes killed 54 of the enemy.

South Vietnamese casualty reports for the action were incomplete. One military source said the regiment that was driven out of the Ross-Que Son area had lost more than one-third of its 1,000 men killed, wounded or missing in the swift North Vietnamese advance.

About 100 miles to the north, South Vietnamese marines claimed they killed 70 enemy Tuesday is clashes around Quang Tri.

The marines, still dodging heavy shellfire in the fourth week of their drive to retake Quang Tri, reported losing six men killed and 28 wounded in fighting that ranged between 400 yards and a mile from the Quang Tri Citadel.

Antiaircraft fire from the city hit a U.S. jet making a napalm strike and the plane exploded in flames. The U.S. Command said both crewmen of the Air Force F4 phantom were missing.

American B52 bombers unloaded 300 tons of explosives on the demilitarized zone and another 1,000 tons below the DMZ within 12 miles of Quang Tri in the effort to stall the flow of enemy supplies and reinforcements.

Senior U.S. officials claimed that the U.S. air campaign and the mining of North Vietnam's harbors have cut the supply flow by 90%. They said North Vietnamese troops in the South are drawing mainly on stocks from before the start of their offensive March 30.

There was no way to check this report. Early in the offensive some U.S. sources said the enemy would not have enough supplies to sustain it more than two or three months. Recent estimates have said the stockpiles could last several more months.

Overcast skies over inland North Vietnam cut U.S. air strikes Monday to about 150, fewer than half the average of late last week. U.S. Navy pilots reported knocking out 10 bridges and numerous supply areas along the North Vietnamese coast.

The U.S. Command said an Air Force Phantom killed a South Vietnamese marine and wounded 13 Monday night when it accidentally bombed a marine position 1½ miles north of Quang Tri. The command said there had been eight such mistakes in the last month and a half, killing 26 South Vietnamese soldiers and wounding 96.

Bad weather, faulty bomb-release mechanisms and failure of the Vietnamese to mark their positions clearly were major causes, the command reported.

Session Is 'Friendly, Helpful'

Austin, Tex. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern met with former President Lyndon B. Johnson at the LBJ Ranch Tuesday and came away describing the private session as "most friendly and helpful."

McGovern said he and the former president and the Democratic vice-presidential candidate, Sargent Shriver, had discussed a broad range of issues during the three-hour meeting.

McGovern said the national ticket sought Johnson's advice and "he generously gave it and we were deeply impressed with his wisdom."

McGovern said he was happy to have the endorsement of the former president, whose Vietnam war policies provided the South Dakota senator with the issue that carried him to the Democratic presidential nomination.

McGovern and Shriver held a news conference in the multimillion-dollar LBJ Library after they returned by helicopter from their visit to the ranch, 65 miles west.

Newsmen and photographers had been barred from the ranch meeting in a move that clearly disappointed McGovern staff workers who had hoped for the kind of fanfare that could help drive home a message of Democratic party unity.

McGovern, however, sought to dispel speculation that he would get less than 100% support from Johnson, whose only comment on the McGovern nomination was a statement of endorsement last week distributed to weekly newspapers near his ranch.

He said the former president gave him and Shriver "good homely and down-to-earth advice" on how to appeal to disaffected members of the party and mend broken political fences.

"I'm going to take his advice to heart," McGovern said.

"We are going to reach out to all elements of the party which did not support my nomination."

McGovern declined to say what the nature of Johnson's advice was.

In answer to a question, he said he would have supported Johnson if he had run for president again in 1968.

McGovern was asked about Johnson's physical appearance.

"He was fit, tanned and vigorous. He showed no sign of fatigue after three hours of our conversation," McGovern said.

At another point in the press conference, the presidential nominee said: "I assure you this visit today will be most helpful to the campaign . . . it seemed to me he gave us his unqualified and enthusiastic support."

McGovern and Shriver arrived in Austin late Monday night to a rousing welcome from as many as 10,000 persons.

2 Guerrilla Bombers Killed

Belfast, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two guerrilla bombers killed themselves and six other persons Tuesday when they blew up a customs post in the border town of Newry in a raid that went wrong.

The body of a man, hooded and bound, was found in South Belfast later to make it nine dead and Northern Ireland's bloodiest day since British troops stormed barricaded guerrilla strongholds three weeks ago in a bid to crush the Irish Republican Army — IRA.

The province's three-year death toll rose to 527 as the IRA struck after warnings that it planned to intensify its terror blitz, stalled by the army's invasion of their base areas in Roman Catholic ghettoes.

Eight mangled bodies were dragged from the rubble of the customs clearing house in Newry, a predominantly Catholic town 30 miles south of Belfast. Police said the blast "just about demolished" the red brick building, repaired two weeks ago after it was ripped by a carload of terrorists, explosives.

Among the bodies were the two terrorists who forced their way into the building at gunpoint to dump their 60-pound bomb in a cardboard carton.

They died before they could plant the bomb, which security sources speculated was made of a highly sensitive and volatile chemical the IRA has been forced to use since troops seized more than five tons of their cahes of gelignite and other explosives.

The two guerrillas forced their way into the post where four customs officers were working. At least two truck drivers were there waiting for clearance for their loads brought over the frontier from the Irish Republic.

United Nations, N.Y. (AP)— In his first budget as secretary-general, Kurt Waldheim asked the General Assembly Tuesday to approve expenditures of $224 million in 1973.

Officers Arrest Demonstrators

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — At least 217 persons were arrested Tuesday after demonstrators harassed pedestrians and stoned the cars of some delegates near Convention Hall, police said. The mass arrests were the first during the Republican National Convention.

A special court set up immediately began to process the protesters. Bond for most was set at $250 each.

The arrests were made on the northeastern corner of the Convention Hall complex during an afternoon convention session. Police moved in after an estimated 250 protesters blocked the intersection and began pounding on cars. Several car windows were shattered, police said.

"We thought there was a potentially dangerous situation developing," said Sgt. Pete Corso of the Miami Beach police. A small group of protesters tried vainly to get inside the wire fence surrounding the hall.

Protesters burned an American flag and shinnied up utility poles to rip down red, white and blue bunting.

"I had a lot of complaints from hotel owners and others that the old people sitting on their porches were bothered," said Police Chief Rocky Pomerance.

Many of the protesters wore shirts with the word "Zippie" emblazoned across the front. The Zippies are a breakaway faction of the Youth International Party (Yippies).

The protesters offered no resistance when officers loaded them into yellow police vans and rented moving vans for the trip across Biscayne Bay to the Dade County Jail in Miami.

Police said most were charged with disobeying the lawful order of an officer. A few, they said, were charged with assault in attacks on pedestrians.

Officers said a few Zippies hit pedestrians with sticks and shoved them around.

Only one injury was reported. Police said a youth was hurt when he fell from a flagpole.

As the vans arrived at the Dade County jail, prisoners in cellblocks shouted from windows: "Free the blacks!"

A few oranges were tossed by those inside the jail at guards unloading the demonstrators.

Meanwhile, about 1,000 other protesters, including a large number of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, marched without incident from Flamingo Park to Republican headquarters at the Fontaineleau Hotel.

Four lines of riot-equipped state police were massed in the driveway of the hotel and two ranks of troopers were spread across Collins Avenue, blocking their movement to the north.

A few hours before President Nixon's arrival at Miami International Airport, two female members of Students for a Democratic Society slipped past dozens of police monitoring a demonstration outside the Fontainebleau and got into the room where Mrs. Nixon and her guests were attending a "Women of Achievement" brunch.

Marsha Monestersky, 20, of Boston, shouted "Miss Pig" and other epithets at the guests — including Tricia Nixon and Cox and Mrs. Spiro Agnew — before Secret Service officers hustled her and 19-year-old Fran Cohn of Buffalo, N.Y., out of the hotel.

When the two young women left the hotel, they were cheered by about 150 picketing antiwar protesters and jeered loudly by about 100 Young Voters for the President.

As she joined her long-haired and tee-shirted compatriots — many of them dirty and dishevelled after a week of camping out — Miss Cohn said she thought the fact that she wore a dress helped her slip past police, who weren't used to seeing female protesters in anything but shorts or jeans.

The protesters showed up after the brunch guests had arrived, so they contented themselves with hurling jeers at the Young Voters, and the two groups soon were busily engaged trying to drown each other out.

"Four more years, Four more years," and "Nixon now, Nixon now," the scrubbed and barbered pro-Nixon youths chanted in cadence to the music of a small band.

The protesters were less organized in their cheers, but they had a bull-horn to amplify chants of "One, two, three, four, we don't want your sexist war," and "Racist, sexist, we say no. Richard Nixon's got to go."

Scores of police and security officers, backed up by a hovering security helicopter, made sure the pro- and anti-Nixon groups stayed apart, and police said there were no arrests.

After about an hour of picketing the Fontainebleau, the demonstrators straggled down Collins Avenue to the Saxony Hotel, where Puerto Rican Gov. Luis Ferre is staying, and staged a short protest there.

Then they marched on to their campsite at Flamingo Park in South Miami Beach, some 25 blocks from the Fontainebleau. Police said a window was smashed in the Pan American Bank Building as the demonstrators passed, but it was not known who broke the window.

Violations Found In Election Fund

Washington (UPI) — The General Accounting Office (GAO) has found violations in the handling of nearly $500,000 by President Nixon's relection committee, the Washington Post reported Tuesday.

A spokesman for the GAO said the report of the investigation would be released shortly, possibly Tuesday.

Quoting "several reliable sources" the newspaper said GAO investigators found what they described as a $100,000 "campaign security fund." From this fund, it said, $25,000 was deposited in a bank account of one of the suspects in the alleged bugging and break-in at the Democratic national committee.

The Post also said the investigators cited the Committee for Reelection of the President for failure to report all the funds it received after April 7, the effective date of a new campaign fund reporting law.

According to the sources, the $500,000 questioned by the investigators represents about $200,000 in unreported contributions, and "another couple hundred thousand dollars in unreported expenditures".

Added to the total was the $100,000 campaign security fund, and "some errors, apparently technical, in reporting a $50,000 itemization, and an undisclosed amount, probably small, of loose cash at the Nixon committee," the newspaper said.

The newspaper quoted other Republican sources as claiming that if there were any irregularities they would turn out to be technical, or simple administrative oversights.

According to the sources, the Post said the investigators found evidence of several "slush funds," special accounts which did nnot appear to be included in the regular bookkeeping.

One of these was the fund of about $100,000 that was designated for security purposes. A $25,000 campaign check deposited in a Miami bank account of one of the persons arrested in the Democratic offices June 17 was taken from this fund, the newspaper said.

Republicans Just Overflowing With Optimism

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Miami Beach — Republicans just can't help themselves. Gripped in the euphoria of what they believe to be certain success this November, they are overflowing with optimism.

The only suspense, it seems, is the size of the landslide they anticipate with great relish this November.

"We want to give Richard Nixon the biggest margin ever in a presidential race so on The Hill they will know he speaks for the people," Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz told a caucus of the Nebraska convention delegation Tuesday.

A few minutes later, Lincoln insurance executive George Cook, who heads Nixons Nebraska campaign, told the delegates he is aiming for a 60,000 majority in the Cornhusker State this autumn.

That would be the President's largest victory ever in Nebraska, the state which gave him his greatest percentage of the vote in any state both in 1960 and 1968.

Cook said he expects to recruit an army of 10,000 volunteers in Nebraska for the Nixon re-election campaign.

The Republican optimism dominates this convention, spilling over at the breakfast table, in the hotel lobbies, on the convention hall buses, at the hall itself and in the bar and nightspots which dot the beach.

As Butz told Nebraskans Tuesday, "The payoff for second place is not very high."

If the GOP convention is dull and unexciting, Sen. Roman Hruska said, it is only because "we are captives of our success.

"We meet here to reaffirm our conviction and our faith in him. If there are no broken head or bloody noses or quarrels, then we are duly apologetic . . . . but what a nice apology to have to make."

"It's a glorious record," Butz declared.

The Nebraska caucus at the Montmartre Hotel was addressed by Butz; Ambassador William Eberle, special representative for trade negotiations; Richard Van Dusen, undersecretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and Thomas Leppe, administrator of the Small Business Administration.

The problems which Nixon inherited were "created by his (Democratic) predecessors," Van Dusen said.

Thus, he suggested, they now propose "an interesting campaign premise" which might be characterized as "throw the rascals in "

Eberle assured the delegates that the President's new detente with Communist powers is being pursued in the context of Nixon's long suspicion of their actions.

"We deal with them at arm's length, always putting the U.S. first," he said.

Referring to Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern as "that prairie preacher," Butz said his election would be "a national disaster."

McGovern's Vietnam policy would "disgrace the honor and the integrity of America," the secretary insisted.

When Nixon took office nearly four years ago, Butz said, "we were out of control" at home. Now, he said, "The chaos is lifted. And the cities and the campuses are no longer ablaze."

With Nixon's re-election, Butz said, "The philosophy of the Supreme Court can be set in concrete for the next 20 years" by his subsequent appointment of new justices. There could be as many as four changes within the next four years he said.

If McGovern won, Butz said, he would move the U.S. toward a socialized economy.

Butz does not expect that to happen.

"Things are going with us pretty strong this year," he smiled.

Batchelder Sees Hope For More Conservative Administration In '76

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Miami Beach — Conservative spokesman Clifton Batchelder Tuesday said he hopes the 1972 Republican National Convention and the re-election this November of President Nixon will "set the stage for a more conservative Republican administration in 1976."

And Batchelder, the former Omaha state senator who took former Gov. Norbert Tiemann to the wire in the 1970 GOP gubernatorial primary election, has a man in mind to succeed Nixon four hears hence.

It's Ronald Reagon.

"I would favor Reagan or Agnew," Batchelder said during an interview in the lobby at Nebraska's convention headquarters hotel, the Montmartre.

"Reagan would be my first choice as of now. I would put him ahead of Agnew only because of his administrative experience as the chief executive of a tremendously large state."

Reagan is completing his second term as governor of California. Vice President Spiro Agnew will be renominated by the convention Wednesday night, placing him in ideal position to seek the presidential nod in 1976.

That's what the rules fuss here in Miami Beach is all about . . . 1976, and which states will be in control of the Republican convention that year.

Batchelder supported the rules committee's amended compromise plan which protected the relative voting strength of the smaller, and generally more conservative, states at the 1976 conclave.

"I looked at the rules battle with the hopes that it could be resolved in a manner that would give us the kind of government we want now and in the future," he said.

Batchelder said he expects an "overwhelming" victory for Nixon at the polls this November. "And I hope for it," he noted.

But while he has no problem supporting Nixon, Batchelder pointed out, "in general, he's not as conservative as I am. But," he added with a smile, "I'm sure he's more electable."

Batchelder declined to list his differences with the Nixon record.

As for the convention's platform eulogizing that record, Batchelder said he has "no criticisms I think worthy of making an issue on the floor . . . or that would be practical of making an issue on the floor."

Batchelder will return to Omaha after the convention to launch what he said will be a "strong" general election campaign for a seat on the University of Nebraska Board of Regents.

Everroad, Wife In Incident With Anti-War Group

Miami Beach, Fla. (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. John Everroad of Nebraska was jostled and thrown to the pavement and his wife had to beat off anti-war demonstrators with her umbrella as they tried to enter the convention hall at the Republican National convention Monday night.

Everroad said the antiwar protesters gathered outside the gates to the convention center knocked him down but he crawled through their legs unhurt. He said he was separated from his wife and when he spotted her she was beating the attackers with her umbrella. Neither was hurt.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Former director of the Nebraska Soil and Water Conservation Commission Warren Fairchild, now an assistant commissioner with the Federal Bureau of Reclamation, pointed out an important distinction in a speech he made to the national conference of the Conservation Education Association.

Fairchild spoke about the difference between conservation and preservation. While both involve the intelligent utilization of our resources, conservation generally will mean proper use while preservation will mean non-use.

If we are to provide the kind of environment in which we are interested and still maintain sufficient natural resources for our people's need and enjoyment, then we must be able to clearly understand the things we have to deal with. There are times when non-use is in the best interest of the people but times, too, when it is not.

The national problem over electric energy is a good case in point. Some would have you believe that it is time for us to sacrifice in the area of power usage in order to conserve the environment.

If that were our only choice, we would have to take the road that leads to lower electric energy demands, but this is not essential. We do not have to stop all power generation plant construction to avoid pollution of the air and water.

What we need to do is to develop power plants that give us a minimum of such pollution and we ought to remember that a total lack of pollution is a practical impossibility within the current limits of man's knowledge.

If this nation had adopted a policy of total preservation in its beginning, we would have none of the advanced society we have today. With total preservation, a farmer could not even till his soil and maybe he could not even graze his cattle.

With total preservation, nature would be left to do what it willed with all our land and water resources. And as remarkable as nature is, it is highly destructive and wasteful, from a human point of view.

Without mankind, maybe nature would do exactly those things needed to be done for preservation of the universe but nature is not always compatible with the ends of society. We give up preservation when we build a dam to conserve water, when we irrigate our crops or when we improve channels or take other steps to avoid floods and soil erosion.

The proper way to approach the matter of our environment is to look for the maximum utilization of it. We need to work with all aspects of our land, air and water to the end that tese things serve the interests and concerns of people.

Fairchild said that "to conserve is to manage wisely and prevent exploitation" and we would agree 100% with him. To do this does not mean you ignore nature, but rather, that you use natural resources in the proper way.

It is because of this that such things as the proposed Northeast Diagonal in Lincoln move ahead despite the objections of some people. It is difficult to visualize the diagonal as the environmental and social spoiler it is painted by some.

The diagonal is related to orderly movement of traffic and whatever are the consequences of that should fall to something else. In other words, we do not necessarily stop providing for orderly traffic movement because of problems that may stem from such work.

Rather, we should seek to solve the problems that are an outgrowth of street developments. Sometimes this is not possible and the street development might be foregone but such is not universal policy.

Our objective in all such things should be to meet the needs of society in all respects, not to sacrifice progress through false economies. We need to continue to do a better job of conservation in many areas rather than reverting to a cultural status we might have had in past generations.

Anderson Stories

Arlington, Va.

On July 31, Jack Anderson wrote that the Thai government's destruction of 26 tons of opium worth $1.3 billion on the New York pusher's market was a hoax; the CIA and other agencies had reported that all but five tons were fodder. Joining the media campaign to place the odium of opium upon our allies and to obscure the evidence of Red Chinese involvement, he wrote: "Either through corruption or stupidity, the Thai officials failed to test the huge mounds of 'opium'."

A CIA report did mention this rumor, but also mentioned a BNDD (Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs) comment to the effect that it was false. If Anderson saw this report, he did a bad job of researching it. One Mr. Whitten of Anderson's office would not say when asked if they had checked the story with BNDD; BNDD said they had not.

So BNDD showed the press films of the tests. Two BNDD officials had taken and tested samples from each of the 319 bags later burned, finding enough morphine in each to rule out any possibility of adulteration. "Contrary to what Mr. Anderson reports," said the BNDD spokesman, "the Thai government did test the opium . . . Our chemist tested it . . . There was no question. It was opium."

Is it not time for us to get rid of this man who will spread any rumor, distort any evidence, and expose the most indiplomatic of secrets to get himself publicity?

One More Trip

Salem, Ore.

Some day I had hoped to wander back again to where my old home stands on the Kansas and Nebraska line. We had it all there—the sparkling little Blue River, many trees in season, an abundance of wild flowers and birds. I would like to have seen the flowers, the brook, the grand old woods and listened to the birds again. I would have got a kick out of it.

But it is no use. My 99 years have made me unable even to wander about my own room. That is what Father Time does to a guy.

How To Stop Them

Lincoln, Neb.

In The Lincoln Star of May 27, in an article headed "Bremer Trail Undetected," a correspondent says: "Even when a would-be assassin has pursued his deadly intent from state to state and into another country over several weeks' time and left a trail in the process, there is no way of preventing it.

"If there is no way of detecting these people — and there does not seem to be — at least society should try to keep them unarmed."

Now, I would like to ask the author of this article to explain how he expects to accomplish his suggestion "to keep them (the would-be assassins) unarmed" when he himself agreed "there is no way of detecting these people."

Seeking Justice

Wilber, Neb.

We love this great country of ours. We worship the Constitution that many great men have created and written, so that man can be free. Yet when a poor man looks for justice, there appears to be none. It's a shame that our Constitution has to be so badly abused and degraded for the soul purpose of the control and domination of selfish and greedy people.

Today everyone is so busy making a living and trying to beat the cost of living that we hardly have time to stop and look around to see what this is really all about.

The little people should demand justice, the justice that is written into the Constitution. We feel that Senator McGovern will try very hard to accomplish this. The little people should get behind him. We ourselves will vote for Senator McGovern. We are proud and honored to and we don't care who knows it!

THE UNSUBTLE PITCH

Demo Party Theme Song Sung In Convention Hall

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Editorial Writer

President Nixon already has a good share of them, anyway. According to Campaign Manager Clark MacGregor's figures, the President, needing 25% of the Democratic vote and 60% of the independent vote to be elected, has 75% of the latter leaning his way or firmly committed and has attracted 40% of those registered Democratic.

To keep that percentage from settling below the 30-mark, a cornerstone of the upcoming GOP campaign will be for Republicans to invite their Democratic cousins along on a four-year Nixon vacation.

It is part of the "open door party" pitch. And the pitch has been none too subtle.

There is something new in the country—the three-party system. Democratic, Republican and McGovernite. Only the last two, says Gov. Ronald Reagan of California, will have nominees in this election.

The "regular" Democrats are being left alone and their heroes are being praised to the high heavens by speaker after speaker.

Harry Truman and Lyndon Johnson were honored by this Republican convention Monday. The delegates were asked to feel sorry for Hubert Humphrey. John Kennedy was quoted by Barry Goldwater.

The delegates roared a joyous approval to a resolution inviting Democrats "to join in the re-election of President Nixon."

On that note, the strains of "Happy Days Are Here Again," the battle hymn of the Democratic party since the days of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, rang throughout a Republican convention hall for the first time in history.

But nothing is improbable in the Nixon era.

Pictures of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai, two gentlemen who have not been wildly popular among Republicans, grace the inside pages of the party's official convention program.

You needn't ask whether the love-thy-Democrat strategy is sound; there are enough Democrats turning their backs on McGovern out of fright to make it largely unnecessary.

One reason the Republicans are spending so much time cuddling up to the opposition regulars is that they have little else to do.

No matter how hard the speakers are trying to convince the delegates otherwise, anyone looking in on it knows that this is not an exciting convention. It is deadly dull.

Moreover, there is something about this call for a truce between old enemies that strains credibility.

If the McGovernites are discredited in the coming election and the Democratic party moves to the center again, those old boys placed on pedestals by the Republicans this week will be goats four years from now.

But President Nixon quite naturally is not thinking about times hence. He will get all the mileage he can out of the McGovern backlash.

Another aspect of this new Republican "open door" policy is that apparently it is intended only for Democrats.

The convention managers have effectively stifled any dissenting voice within GOP ranks.

Moves to broaden by formula the participation of youths, minorities and women in future conventions have been beaten down by conservatives.

There are few black faces down on the floor of the convention hall where the delegates and alternates sit.

The Republican party may have pioneered in placing women in high party offices and in organizing a party youth wing, but those pioneering efforts are not particularly reflected in the roll call of delegates.

The early demonstrations proved harmless.

It rained the other night as Jane Fonda and Erica Huggins talked to about a thousand non-delegates outside Convention Hall about bombing the dikes and political prisoners. Most of the folks inside didn't know they were there.

Militant women marched down Collins Ave. in the convention hall district shortly before dinner, offending the sensibilities of most of the onlooking natives. Eye brows raised as one ferocious contingent marched by carrying a "Radical Lesbians" sign.

"All-American garbage," an old-timer muttered.

The most moving speech given in Miami Beach thus far—inside or outside the hall—asked Florida National Guardsmen camped at a local high school to think about the war. The speaker was a paraplegic member of the Vietnam veterans against the war. Many in that organization don't have arms or legs or both. They have the most right of anybody to speak out about the war and they are the least heard.

BOB CONSIDINE

Other GOP Meets Not Quite So Dull

MIAMI BEACH — Hard to believe, but GOP conventions once could be exciting. This one promises to be about as lively — outsiders permitting — as a briefing for the Audubon Society on the feeding habits of the yellow-bellied sapsucker. But in the past, youngsters will be amazed to learn, fierce disunities developed at Republican conventions.

First GOP convention I covered was in 1940 at Philadelphia. It wasn't by any means a case of water finding its lowest level. An absolute upstart with a cowlick, one Wendell Willkie, who had surfaced nationally only a few months before with a provocative article in Fortune magazine, hardly the favorite periodical of the working man, won the nomination from such dependables as Tom Dewey and Bob Taft.

Nobody who was there will ever forget the chants from the galleries of the evil old convention hall: "We Want Willkie!" It was later charged that Willkie's handlers had "packed" those bleachers. Perhaps they did. If so, the delegates dutifully swung his way like a flight of moths, and happily bestowed the nomination on a man who pronounced the name of this country "Ammurrika."

The 1952 GOP convention was storm-ridden, too. Gen. Eisenhower, with no political experience or interest in politics as such, was being moved into the nomination over the man most Republicans felt deserved the shot — Sen. Taft. Ike played a passive role in the machinations behind the scenes.

He always figured, it seemed to me, that the presidency was something like being awarded a sixth star on his uniform; that it was more or less due him because of his military seniority. Whatever, there were backstage maneuverings by Tom Dewey and others that would have given Machiavelli pause. It revolved around the seating of a semi-maverick delegation. The pitch was, to over-simplify matters, that Taft (a saintly man) was trying to gyp Ike (the father image) out of his rightful adherents on the convention floor.

The Dewey side prevailed in what was pretty much a prehistoric preview of the recent Democratic convention battle over the California delegations' right to squat. At the climax of the Dewey manipulation, gray-maned Sen. Ev Dirksen took the lectern, pointed a long finger at Dewey who was seated with the New York delegation, and cried out evangelistically, "Twice you led us down the road to defeat — you shall not do it again!" An impassioned Republican from another delegation rushed down the aisle and seemed about to pounce on Dewey, who just sat there on his aisle perch, smoking his cigaret through an FDR holder, and magnificently unflappable.

The 1964 Republican convention at San Francisco was filled with angry charges and counter charges. Richard Nixon, who had won his party's nomination just four years before, and who had lost to John F. Kennedy by a whisker (sic), had trouble getting two extra tickets to the Cow Palace. The overpowering man that year was Sen. Barry Goldwater. Emotions blazed.

The 1968 Republican convention, being bereft of competition, was a blurry coronation of Mr. Nixon, who since 1964 had made the greatest comeback since Lazarus. The only surprise was the selection of Spiro Agnew, originally a Rockefeller man, as Vice President.

This time, well . . .

Well, goodnight.

Possibility Of Republican Congress

WASHINGTON — As the Republicans wind up their 1972 convention with President Nixon a heavy favorite for re-election, party strategists are turning their attention to what has hitherto been a gossamer dream — the election of a Republican Congress.

To date, both the White House and the Committee for the Re-Election of the President have paid relatively little attention to the House and Senate races. Maurice Stans, Nixon's chief fund-raiser, has been stingy with congressional campaign money; and the Re-Election Committee's liaison man for these races, former White House aide Harry Flemming, has been of little or no effectiveness.

But now these attitudes are beginning to shift for three reasons: 1) the President's own huge (and probably unassailable) lead; 2) the growing prospect of a Nixon landslide that could extend surprisingly long coattails to local party candidates; and 3) the increasingly optimistic polls coming from Republican House and Senate candidates from Maine to Montana. Here is the situation as it is now emerging.

Most observers feel that the GOP's best hope lies in the Senate, now Democratic by a 54-45 margin (with Virginia's Harry Byrd the lone Independent). Of the 33 seats to be filled this year, 19 are Republican, and all but a few are expected to stay in GOP hands. The close races are in Michigan, South Dakota and Idaho. Margaret Chase Smith is now seen ahead in Maine, while former Governor Louie Nunn leads in Kentucky. Party stratigists are even beginning to cross their fingers that all of the GOP seats may be held, including one in South Dakota hitherto expected to go Democratic because of the home state appeal of presidential nominee George McGovern. (New private GOP polls taken in South Dakota are said to show party Senate nominee Robert Hirsch leading the Democratic contender, Rep. James Abourezk.

If the Republicans can hold all of the 19 seats up this year, they can take over the Senate with a gain of five (or a pick-up of four relying on the obtainable support of Independent Byrd). In the last few weeks, gaining at least four seats has become a steadily bigger possibility. According to the most recent polls, GOP challengers are clearly ahead in Rhode Island, North Carolina and New Mexico. In Georgia and Oklahoma, the candidates are running neck and neck. Even some hitherto unconcerned Democrats are feeling the warm breath of GOP challengers — Lee Metcalf of Montana has a thin lead, likewise William Spong of Virginia. Former Postmaster General Winton Blount trails in Alabama, but with a Nixon landslide in the offing, nobody rules him out.

To capture the House of Representatives, the GOP would need to pick up almost 40 seats. At first glance, this seems highly unlikely. Nonpartisan observers generally anticipate a Republican gain in the 10-20 range, and even White House tacticians doubt that more than 30 Democratic seats can be captured. But the situation in the House is a little more complicated than that in the Senate. Should the GOP win 25-30 seats, and come within 10 or 12 seats of winning control, there are a number of southern Democratic congressmen who have expressed an interest in switching parties.

Whether or not many southern Democrats are ultimately willing to do publicly what they hint at privately in the cloakrooms will depend on the magnitude of the November 7 results. If President Nixon sweeps Dixie, and puts the Republican handwriting on the southern wall; if the GOP picks up 25-30 new congressmen and thereby comes within an ace of control; and if the White House and congressional GOP leadership can make the necessary arrangements to safeguard the seniority and committee prerogatives of Democratic switchers, then anywhere from 10 to 30 conservative southern Democrats could go over to the GOP in January, 1973.

This would give the Republicans organizational control of the House, and further switches would probably follow as additional Dixie Democrats decided that they were foolish to remain on the minority side with a bunch of left-liberals.

As of late August, this remains conjectural. But in high GOP strategic circles, the possibility of a Republican Congress is now finally beginning to receive serious attention. If Richard Nixon takes an interest, and quickly orders fund-raiser Stans to turn on the cash spigots for local candidates, the results on November 7 might just give the President the sort of congress he wants and needs.

ANTHONY LEWIS

Dikes, Schools, Homes Bombed In Indochina; U.S. Government, People Share In The Blame

NEW YORK — If a man keeps dangerous animals running wild on his estate, and one mauls a guest's child, he cannot escape responsibility by saying that he had no intention of letting children be hurt. That is generally the law now, and common sense. Subjective intent does not have to be proved, because keeping wild animals where people go makes it so likely that someone will be hurt.

The same common-sense view cuts through the argument about whether the United States is "deliberately" bombing dikes and other civilian targets in North Vietnam. When the greatest power on earth pours bombs on a small, backward country, it is a necessary consequence that people and things of an innocent character will be destroyed. In the legal phrase, the great power will not be heard to argue that it meant no harm.

Of course there would be a different degree of moral culpability in any calculated attempt to destroy dikes or houses or hospitals in North Vietnam. The generals and the politicians in this and previous administrations have concealed so many horrors — massacres and forest fires and crop destruction and the like — that we cannot exclude the possibility of more.

But it is bad enough to deny responsibility for the human costs of a policy of mass destruction. And that is what the United States government is doing: putting on a show of amazement at the notion that American bombs actually kill people. The piety of the performance drips like treacle.

Consider, for example, an episode well before the present phase of continuous all-out bombing. Last December, when four American Phantoms were shot down in Laos, the U.S. retaliated by 1,000 bombing sorties against North Vietnam in five days. Most of the time the weather was so bad that the pilots could not even see the ground. Yet the official claim remained that only military targets were being hit. President Nixon called the raids "very successful."

Since last May, Nixon has removed some of the restrictions on American bombing of North Vietnam. The command is now free to hit economic as well as military targets, and to carry on a planned bombing campaign without regular reference back to Washington.

Half the planes in the Strategic Air Command — 200 B-52's — are now being used against Vietnam, North and South. Those are our strategic planes, designed for use against massive targets in an ultimate conflict with another great power. And the United States is using them against a peasant country.

The propaganda from Washington and Saigon makes it sound as though every American raid is hitting the Ruhr or some mighty military installation. There is talk of destroying "industries" and "naval bases."

Naval bases! For what — sampans? As for industries, there is hardly a factory in North Vietnam that an American businessman would have looked at twice in 1890. When the Joint Chiefs of Staff first tried to pick bombing targets in North Vietnam, they found only eight industrial sites worth listing.

It is on this backward country, with its mud villages and primitive technology, that the United States is dropping thousands of tons of bombs every month. (The total figure for Indochina is running over 100,000 tons a month, but the Pentagon does not give the total separately for the four target countries).

Neeessarily, then, inevitably, bombs in that volume destroy things not remotely related to the North Vietnamese war effort. In Haiphong last May I saw acres of housing smashed flat, a school destroyed, a hospital damaged. More recently Joseph Kraft wrote from Hanoi: "I have seen with my own eyes the damage done by American bombs to home, schools, stores and many innocent people."

First-hand reports of civilian bomb damage have in fact been available for years, but American officials continued to react to them with an injured innocence, an impeturbable cynicism. It is in the light of this experience that one should now read the denials of any "deliberate" bombing of the dikes.

The explanation given by Washington for the bomb craters that have been seen in the dikes is that the damage was incidental to attacks on nearby military targets such as "road and river transport lines." But in the waterlogged Red River delta, laced by more than 2,000 miles of dikes, the dikes are often the only place to build an all-weather road. If you bomb roads and "river transport lines" in North Vietnam, you will hit dikes.

The United States has now dropped on Indochina three times the tonnage of bombs that it used in all theaters of World War II. Those bombs have hit, among other things, dikes and hospitals and schools and peasant villages. Washington knows about that destruction: it has the pictures. In those circumstances a judge in the Common Law tradition would not allow the American government to wash its hands of responsibility for the civilian damage. Or the American people.

U.S. Collected $270 Million For Israel Fund

Tel Aviv (AP) — American fund raisers collected a record $270 million for Israel last year, topping by $24 million the previous high raised after the 1967 Middle East war, the United Jewish Appeal reported.

Paul Zuckerman of Detroit, Mich., general chairman of the appeal, reported the figure at a news conference launching the 1973 campaign.

Fair's 4-H Hog Exhibitors Will Encounter New Rule

Four-H swine exhibitors at the 1972 Nebraska State Fair (August 31-Sept. 6) will encounter a new rule — no withdrawals will be allowed from the carcass contest.

Swine exhibitors were reminded of this new ruling by Dr. William Ahlschwede, University of Nebraska-Lincoln Extension swine specialist and co-superintendent of the swine show.

Previously, purple ribbon winners were the only group required to compete in the carcass contest but the rule has been changed to include all market hogs with no withdrawals allowed.

Noted Ahlschwede, "This new ruling should further establish the State Fair 4-H swine show as a market show and should stress the economics of the market as a part of the show."

Another addition for the first year will be added premiums for on-foot champions. Champion market barrows and market gilts will receive $100 each, with $50 each for the reserve champions in each of those divisions, and $25 each for the breed champions. This additional premium money is given courtesy of local businessmen.

The O. A. Cooper Company of Humboldt will pay $200 to the owner of the champion carcass and $100 to the owner of the reserve champion carcass. Premiums will be paid on the basis of "the percent of trimmed ham and loin of the total carcass weight" of the 4-H market hog exhibits consigned to Hormel Co. of Fremont for slaughter, explained Ahlschwede.

New Brucellosis Auction Market Rules To Begin

Amended brucellosis and auction marekt regulations will be implemented Sept. 1, according to state veterianrian Dr. Norman Kruse.

The new regulations provide that cattle two years old and older will be backtagged and tested for brucellosis before they will be released from any auction market except for those animals consigned to slaughter.

Cattle that age to be sold to dealers or to private individuals have to be tested at the time they change ownership, Kruse said.

Herds or parts of herds may be tested within 30 days prior to sale and will be allowed to move without test during that period, provided they have proper identification.

Holstein Cattle Outnumbered At State Fair

Title I Proposal Approved By Lincoln Board Of Education

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday approved the district's 1972-73 Title I proposal and got word from Supt. John Prasch that Roman Catholic educators disagree with one portion of it.

Prasch noted, however, that the main disagreements that plagued the controversy-ridden federal program previously are gone this year. The difference is a State Supremt Court decision which permits use of the federal monies to provide direct services for children in private schools.

The Title I program is designed to serve so-called educatonally disadvantaged children who live in neighborhoods with a significant percentage of low-income families.

Prasch said the only major disagreement this time is over the amount of money to be skimmed from the "top" of the grant for "shared administrative costs."

He said he has recommended 7% rather than last year's 5% on the basis of a State Education Dept. directive to try to estimate those costs to the dollar.

"We think we can document more than 7%," he said.

Contacted later in the day, Father James Dawson o fthe Lincoln Catholic diocesan schools said he is opposing the increase on the grounds it will necessitate a cutback in services to children.

"The big thing is service to the child," he said.

He said the 5% figure was supported in 1971-72, and he added he believes that accord came recently enough to continue it in the coming year.

Dawson said he was pleased with other aspects of the Title I program, noting it will provide private school children with services in remedial reading equipment, speech therapy and psychology.

It was Dawson and Prasch who sparred last year during the biggest controversy over Title I.

Prasch also told the school board that he had repeated this year a previous request suggesting Dawson and the public schools waive room rental fees built into the program.

Prasch has argued those fees should be waived for reasons similar to Dawson's on the administrative cost issue. The public school suprintendent says those funds should be used for services to children.

Since Dawson declined to sign the new proposal for reasons of disagreement on the administrative cost, Prasch said that figure will have to be set by the state after arbitration.

In othr matters at a regular meeting, the school board approved for one-year an organizational change which reduces Prasch's three administrative assistant positions to two and puts greater responsibility into the hands of the associate superintendent for instruction.

Until recent resignatons, Prasch has had administrative assistants for planning and evaluation, governmental relations and publications and information.

Under the new set-up, he will have two — an assistant for information and publications and an assistant for management services. The salary that would have gone to the third will be split to pay two assistants for the new management services position, which has yet to be filled.

Donald Ferguson is the assistant for information and publications.

Board member Ed Copple said he feared Prasch's plan for added responsibility for the associate superintendent for instruction may overload the position, particularly if it is filled one day by some other than Ronald Brandt.

But Copple agreed to a one-year trail.

While praising Brandt, he said placing all student services under Brandt's jurisdiction may make the responsibilities more than any other person than Brandt could handle.

In other matters, the board:

—heard a report on summer school, which showed a drop in enrollment this year, from 4,200 in 1971 to 3,548. Most of the decrease was at the secondary level —approved previously discussed transportation and football telecasting plans.

—got a look at a new schedule for facilities planning, which calls for approval of preliminary drawings for a Calvert-relief school on Sept. 5. At the meeting, the board will hear a study on possible sites for another new elementary school, this one in the Southwood area.

School Board Okays New Pact For Prasch

The Lincoln Board of Education Tuesday voted to provide Supt. John Prasch with a new three-year contract and set salary increases for Prasch and other chief administrative officers of the school district.

The decisions were a part of final salary considerations for the 1972-73 year.

Percentage increases for the administrators range from a low of 3.2% for Prasch to a high of 6.7% for Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt. Most are in the 4.2% to 5.3% range.

Prasch's current three-year contract would not have expired until next year.

On the salaries, the superintendent had recommended that dollar increases for administrators who work in the instructional program be limited to $1,155, the highest dollar increase available to administrators who are covered by the Lincoln Education Association's collective bargaining agreement.

None of the administrators whose salaries were set Tuesday are covered by that agreement.

School board members accepted the recommendation for all administrators but Brandt, voting to add another $500 to the recommended increase for him.

The increase would bring his salary closer to that of the associate superintendent for business affairs. A new organizational chart approved Tuesday also gives Brandt more administrative responsibility.

Here is a list of the salaries set Tuesday, with figures for 1971-72 and the new fiscal year and the percentage increase:

—Brandt, associate superintendent for instruction, from $24,800 to $26,455; increase of 6.7%.

—Carroll Sawin, assistant superintendent for personnel, from $22,000 to $23,155; increase of 5.2%.

—James Lightbody, assistant superintendent for the Lincoln Technical College, from $21,850 to $23,005; increase of 5.3%.

In other salary matters, the board accepted Prasch's recommendation for no salary changes for substitute teachers and clerical workers and piano accompanists; approved a 5.2% increase from $5,800 to $6,100) for the three registered nurses on the staff; adopted a salary schedule previously negotiated for food service workers, and approved using this year's salary calculation method for senior associate and associate teachers, but established $3,500 as a minimum for senior associate teachers.

The latter are half-time jobs.

State Accepts Two Projects For Further Local Planning

The Lincoln Board of Education was told Tuesday that state officials have accepted for further planning two innovative projects which could make Lincoln a national leader in approaches to secondary education.

Both will be developed wtih $1,000 planning grants as proposals for funding under Title III of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act, and they will be submitted for funding approval about March 1.

Associate Supt. Ronald Brandt said one, initiated by staff members at Mickle Junior High, would be designed to apply recent theories on adolescent learning as suggested by Swiss psychologist Jean Piaget. It would have a budget estimated at $85,200.

The other, envisioned as a $104,700 project, would implement for use at East High School the "learning community school model" as developed by the Institute for Development of Educational Activities an affiliate of the Charles F. Kettering Foundation.

A prepared explanation of the projects said the Mickle idea is to "develop, implement and evaluate appropriate learning experiences for junior high students who function at different levels in their cognitive development and interpersonal orientation."

Brandt said Piaget has theorized that children go through a series of phases in development of thought processes. The project, said Brandt, may tell educators what happens to a student who is "a concrete thinker with teachers trained to teach abstractly."

The program being studied at East would divide the school into "learning communities of 250 students and 12 teachers," somewhat paralleling the "multi-unit" approach recently developed at several elementary schools in the city.

In the model developed by the Kettering institute, each teacher is assigned to 12 to 15 students as a teacher-adviser analyzes and records information about his students.

The program stresses individually guided learning and includes short courses, contracted learning and out-of-school learning.

Campbell Appointed

John M. Campbell, president of Miller and Paine Department Store, was one of 20 persons from across the country appointed by Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird to the executive committee of the National Committee for Employer Support of the Guard and Reserve.

R. F. Hunter To Take Tech College Post

The board of the Lincoln Technical College Tuesday approved appointment of a University of Nebraska at Omaha staff member as the Lincoln college's new director of staff development and training.

He is 34-year-old Robert F. Hunter, now director of cooperative education at UNO. He will be paid $17,820 a year.

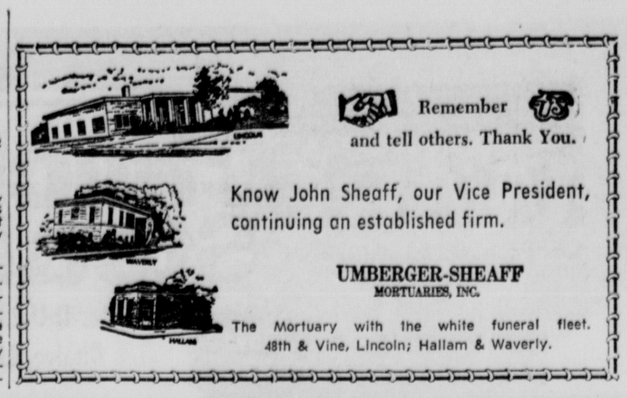
Hunter will replace Robert Schleiger, who resigned recently to become chief executive officer for the new State Technical Community College Board.

Hunter is to begin work in Lincoln Sept. 11.

Tech College Director James Lightbody said Hunter's appointment will be accompanied by an organizational change that will consolidate instructional development and staff development under Hunter and administrative functions under Robert Glenn, who is already on the staff.

In other matters, the board was told that five classrooms had been freed for junior-senior high use at East High, with the move of all Tech College business education classes to Whittier Junior High.

A similar number of classrooms have been opened for junior high use at Lefler with the move of all medical-related Tech College programs to the former Bryan Elementary building.



Remember us and tell others. Thank You.

Zoning Requests Vetoed Again

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

As expected, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf vetoed Tuesday two changes of zone requests for business developments approved by the City Council Aug. 14.

In June the council approved the same two developments — at 48th and M and 56th and Aylesworth — which the mayor subsequently vetoed.

The zoning applications were then reintroduced by council members and routed back to the City-County Planning Commission, which again recommended denial.

In order to override Schwartzkopf's vetoes, the council will need to muster five "ayes" at this Monday's council session. The council approved both applications Aug. 15 on 4 to 2 votes.

The Nebraska Real Estate Association and Lincoln Board of Realtors requested the zoning change from C Multiple to F Restricted Business to build an office building for the two associations at 48th and M.

In issuing his veto, Schwartzkopf noted the planning commission and planning department had again recommended denial.

"This zoning could be the start of strip zoning south on 48th St. and would be better if kept closer to the central business district," he said.

He also cited the proximity of Hawthorne Elementary School, contending approval of the zoning change would interfere with the function of the school.

In vetoing the zoning change at 56th and Aylesworth, the mayor argued that there is ample land zoned for business use in the area. Approval would permit an intrusion of business into a residential area, Schwartzkopf said, and would cause additional traffic on 56th.

A & H Realty and John Last had requested the zoning change from A-2 Single Family to G Local Business on the east side of 56th.

The mayor also said both zoning requests are in "basic conflict" with the Goals and Police report.

In the votes on both zoning changes Aug. 14, Councilmen Merle Hale, Dick Hartsock, Harry Peterson and Bob Sikyta voted for the applications, and council members Helen Boosalis and Dick Baker opposed. Steve Cook was absent.

PIERCE . . . is ambulance attendant now.

Ex-Policeman Works On Ambulance Squad

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — A former Council Bluffs policemen, sentenced to serve two months in prison for allegedly striking and beating a jail prisoner who later died, has been hired by the Pottawattamie County Board as an ambulance division attendant.

The board approved the employment of Everett J. Pierce, 28, Monday at a salary of $500 per month.

Pierce served as a Council Bluffs policeman for four years. He was sentenced April 24 in U.S. District Court on a charge of violating the civil rights of Leo A. Eidshun, a jail prisoner who died of a broken neck on March 22, 1970.

A felony charge against Pierce was dropped in the federal court in March, and he was acquitted of a manslaughter charge in May, 1970, in Pottawattamie County District Court.

Pierce and four other Council Bluffs policemen have been named in a $100,000 suit pending in U.S. District Court here. The suit filed by the administrators of the Eidshun estate.

Since his release from prison, Pierce and a friend have gone into the pet casket business. He said he intends to continue the venture while employed by the county. Ambulance attendants work 24-hour shifts every third day.

Teachers Urged To Stress Values

New Lincoln teachers were told Tuesday that infusing young people with a "sense of community" is the most important thing they can do in their classrooms.

"The world is crying for adults who can function with a sense of community," said Robert Manley, a Lincoln educational consultant and former history professor at the University of Nebraska and Hiram Scott College.

Manley was the speaker at the annual new teacher orientation day and luncheon sponsored by the Lincoln Public Schools and the Lincoln Education Association.

Manley suggested that in too many schools teachers are insensitive to "community values." On the other hand, he added, teachers must not simply indulge youth.

He defined the community as the people with whom individuals relate, those who set their values and those people whom individuals aim to please.

The ability to live within a community effectively, he said, "is the single most important thing we do."

In a "new kind of society," he said, the teacher must be an "astute observer."

"The teacher can no longer see himself as apart from the 'world out there,'" he said.

Suggesting that "this is, by any measurement, a time of crisis," Manley said he is concerned that too many will minimize the magnitude of the crisis and say, "we'll ride it out."

"We returned to normal once before," he said. "It didn't work out."

Many of the nations young people, however, are seeking "panaceas," Manley said. They're "copping out," he suggested. "They're not really involved in substantive change."

Too many innovative changes in schools have been abandoned, Manley said, because students also find it easier to do things the way they've always been done.

Teachers, he said, should make the hours in the classroom the "most productive, fruitful moments" of a child's day.

"It all boils down to the effectiveness of the teacher," he said. "The teacher is more important now than he or she ever was before."

As for teacher organizations, Manley said they are "looking for the wrong thing" if they are seeking job security and improved wages and fringe benefits.

Such organizations must turn their energies to defining education, identifying the kind of people who should be in education and "finding ways to measure teaching to the satisfaction of the public."

"This is exciting," he said.

The resolution sponsored by the Iowa City Kiwanis Club said railroads were abandoning right-of-ways at an accelerating rate. In Iowa alone 3,000 miles of right-of-way is scheduled to be abandoned within the next few years, it noted.

The resolution stated that "there is an ever-growing need for park and recreational facilities."

"If the states do not strive immediately to incorporate such abandoned rights-of-way into park trail systems," it said, "such an opportunity might well be lost to them forever."

Wes Bartlett, president of Kiwanis International, spoke at the closing luncheon and advised the officers to continue working until the date when the leadership changed.

UP Official Worried About Rail Car Supply

Omaha — Jack Bowen, Union Pacific Railroad general superintendent of transportation, is concerned about the supply of grain cars needed to move western grain for sale to Russia, to keep up with record grain movements due to rising grain prices and handling the summer and fall wheat grain harvests all at the same time.

"We had empty cars stored all over the system 30 days ago; two weeks ago we still had an ample supply of cars for the harvest," Bowen said. But now, he is worried.

The Russian wheat order will place a heavy demand on rail cars through the fall and winter, Bowen explained, and has also spurred wheat prices and increased trading between domestic elevators.

"We will feel the pinch first in large covered hopper cars which ships prefer," Bowe said. Union Pacific brought 1,000 of these cars this year, one of the largest single car orders in recent years.

"We bought 750 big hoppers last year and plan another puchase next year," he said. "When the hoppers run out, we'll start throwing boxcars into the battle," he added.

Bowen held out one hope. "A mild fall will spread out the corn and milo harvest and give us a fighting chance," he said.

The UP executive said the railroad has been moving more than a million bushels of wheat a day in Kansas and Nebraska for several weeks.

Hruska Accused Of Lying To State

Omaha (UPI) — A coordinator of the Nebraska McGovern for President group has accused Sen. Roman Hruska of "lying to the people of Nebraska" in connection with comments Hruska made about the 1972 National Democratic Party Platform.

Mrs. Pat Lamberty of Omaha made the comments after learning of Hruska's remarks Sunday night before the Nebraska Republican delegates at the GOP National Convention in Miami.

Hruska told the group Democratic platform planks on amnesty, abortion and marijuana "are going to be devastating" to the party in the 1972 election.

"The Democratic platform contains absolutely nothing on abortion," Mrs. Labmerty said. "We recognized that is a moral issue which has no place in national politics."

The platform also does not mention legalization of marijuana, she said.

"As a matter of fact, our platform calls for much harsher controls on hard drug traffic and increased criminal penalties," she pointed out.

Mrs. Lamberty said the position on amnesty is that after the Vietnam conflict is over and the prisoners of war are returned. "An effort should be made, based on past national precedent, to declare amnesty for all."

In remarks to the GOP caucus, Hruska said: "We're not for amnesty, I might tell you. We don't have abortion in the program, And we don't have legalization of marijuana.

"And you know what the position of the other party is on all three of those things."

Mrs. Lamberty said Hruska's statement means "he's lying to the people of Nebraska."

Political Job Not In Future Leahy Says

Omaha (AP) — When Mayor Eugene Leahy leaves office next May, he may never again seek an elective position, he said Tuesday.

Leahy said he is considering quitting politics because many persons attempt to get political benefits from elected officials.

"I like public life, but I'm not particularly fond of politics," Leahy said. "As a matter of fact, on occasion, I detest politics."

The mayor said he prefers to make decisions based on "what's right for the community. I'm not interested in political popularity."

There has been speculation that Leahy might run for lieutenant governor, governor or U.S. senator. But he said he has no intention now of seeking any elected post. He has repeatedly said he will not seek another term as mayor.

Leahy said he is considering several offers from private concerns or he may accept a government post if offered.

He declined to discuss the possibilities, but said he will announce what job he will take about Jan. 1.

He thinks he may accomplish more by serving in a nonelective position, Leahy said.

"But right now, I have enough to do without worrying about future employment," he said.

Mishap Fatal To Sutherland Man; Rites Set

Mr. Daly was a rancher and a member of the Sutherland school board.

Services will be 3:30 p.m. Thursday at the Adams Swanson Mortuary in North Platte. Survivors include his wife, Loa, one son and two daughters.

More Discrimination Complaints Prompt Higher Budget Request

An increase in discrimination complaints has prompted Equal Opportunity Commission Director Reid E. Devoe to request a $26,391 increase in his 1973-74 budget.

For instance, Devoe said, 135 complaints have been filed so far this year — this represents two cases more than the total filed during 1970. And the 1972 caseload figure most likely will represent a 30% increase over last year's 175, the director said.

"What I'm asking for is at least one more field investigator," Devoe said.

His staff consists of nine people, includnig three field investigators and a deputy director.

"Three field representatives cannot effectively investigate an average of 25 cases per month," Devoe said.

Rapid and efficient handling of the complains is essential in settling discrimination cases, the director stated.

"When an employe is terminated or without a place to live, cases should be expedited to be effective," he said.

The greater number of sex discrimination charges filed this year accounts for much of the increase, he said. But he added that he expects more age discrimination cases to be filed under a federal law enacted in July. This, he said, has increased the commission's responsibiilty and workload.

"We're hoping for a budget hearing," Devoe stated.

The commission is asking for $125,351 for 1973-74.

Two other budget requests were filed Tuesday. In one the State Fire Marshal requested a new expenditure of $20,320 in cash funds to implement a federal fire safety inspection program for hospitals and nursing homes.

The Fire Marshal's office will be a sub-contractor in the agreement and will receive the money from the Health Department.

State Fire Marshal Joe Pluta was on vacation until Monday and consequently unavailable for further elaboration on the inspection program. The total 1973-74 request is $364,477.

The Workmen's Compensation Court requested $324,312 for the next fiscal year, compared to its 1972-73 budget of $290,906. Costs of communications and printing were cited as the reasons for the increase.

Lincoln Man Crushed By Two Trucks

A Lincoln man was crushed to death between two semi-trailer trucks at Kaar Service Tuesday, according to Lancaster County sheriff's officers.

Officers said Walter Gochnour, 47, of 5218 Stockwell, had been raising the dolly wheels from a semi-trailer truck when the trailer shifted and pinned him against another vehicle.

Survivors are: son, Raymond Cook of Lincoln; brothers, Robert of Miami, Ariz. and Chester L. and Charles F., both of Lincoln; sister, Mrs. Ruth Burling of Lincoln; and a grandson.

Falls City Man Charged With Forcible Rape

Falls City (AP) — Carl Chandler Jr., 20, of Falls City was arraigned before Richardson County Judge Albert Maust Tuesday on a charge of forcible rape.

Bond was set at $5,000 and the court will appoint an attorney. He will have a preliminary hearing Sept. 13.

Ronald V. Prater, 22, of Falls City, was previously arraigned on the same charge and freed on $5,000 bond. The charge stemmed from an incident last Wednesday or early Thursday involving a 19-year-old Seneca, Kan., girl living in Falls City.

Sen. Curtis Won't Back Sharing Plan

Sen. Carl Curtis said Tuesday he won't support President Nixon's federal revenue-sharing program unless th program is coupled with a balanced federal budget.

"I cannot support revenue-sharing unless the federal budget is balanced, and I intend to offer an amendment to provide that it won't take effact until the budget is balanced," said the Nebraska Republican.

Curtis said he doesn't expect his amendment to pass and he predicted the bill would be enacted by Congress this year.

Originally, Curtis said revenue-sharing would have been done with money saved by the elimination of some federal activities. Such is not now the case, he said in remarks prepared for delivery at a Rotary Club luncheon.

Curtis called the current $30 billion program "bad public policy," and said it is bad "not just for the present generation but even more so for the future. Today's young people are going to have to carry this debt on their backs all through their lives, unless there is a drastic change in government fiscal policy."

Davenport Youth Dies Of Injuries From Car Crash

Davenport — Steven Koinzan 19, of Davenport died Monday in an Omaha hospital from injuries received in a one-car accident on Nebraska 4, four miles west of Davenport on Aug. 14, the Nuckolls County sheriff's office reported.

The sheriff's office at Nelson said it was not known which of two other persons was driving the car. The others were treated at a hospital and released.

The death brings Nebraska's 1972 highway death toll to 290, compared with 276 on this date one year ago.

One Undercover Agent In Fremont Is Charged

Fremont (AP) — An undercover agent involved in last week's crackdown on drug traffic in Fremont has been charged with concealing stolen property, it was reported Tuesday.

Dodge County Atty. Gordon Gobel confirmed that the man, arrested Aug. 10, is the same man involved in more than two months of undercover investigation.

Gobel said the man was scheduled to appear in Justice Court last Friday but his case was continued until this Friday.

He said the agent was arrested Aug. 10 by W. C. Homes of the Fremont Police Dept. and a report of the arrest was filed.

Homes and another policeman went to an apartment in Fremont with a warrant to arrest Bruce Tehey on Aug. 9 and they said the agent just "happened" to be there.

When they entered the apartment, they said, they found him sleeping on the couch and saw a U.S. flag hanging on the wall.

Police contacted the apartment owner, who told them it was rented to Mike Nootz and the agent, who was unknown to police at the time. Nootz was arrested that day and the agent the next day, they said.

Some 89 charges have been filed in connection with the raid, which culminated two and a half months of investigation.

Nootz has been charged with several counts of drug violation, Gobel said, in connection with a raid last Wednesday. His roommate, the agent, was not charged at that time, Gobel said.

Spent Bullet Strikes Boy, 10

A ten-year-old Lincoln boy was apparently struck by a spent bullet Monday night, according to police reports.

Police said Wayne D. Fisher, 4715 No. 56th was standing in his yard when what appeared to be a .22-caliber bullet struck his abdomen, breaking the skin.

The boy was treated and released from Bryan Hospital.

Shooting Death Believed Suicide

A Lincoln man was found dead of an apparent suicide four miles north and one west of Emerald Tuesday night, according to Lancaster County deputy sheriff Ed Kringle.

Kringle said Michael D. Joyce, 24, of 644 West A, apparently shot himself in the head with a .45 caliber automatic pistol Tuesday morning.

There was no note found at the scene.

Damage Minor In Omaha Bank Blaze

Omaha (AP) — A fire in the City National Bank building in downtown Omaha was quickly extinguished by firemen Monday night and there was only minor damage to the structure. Officials said the fire was possibly caused by careless disposal of a cigarette. It apparently started inside a wall in the basement of the building. Firemen cut off the blaze at the second floor by breaking through the wall.

Arnold Renamed To PCA Committee

Omaha (AP) — Pacesetter Building Systems, Inc., Omaha, announced Tuesday a new quarterly sales record of $2,223,397 for the period ended July 31. This represented a 25.3% increase over the comparable quarter of last year. Net sales for the nine month period amounted to $6,136,832, an increase of 39.4% over the first nine months of 1971. Net earnings for the third quarter were $133,754, up 5.1% from 1971. For the nine month period net earnings were $499,610, an increase of 47.1% over the same period in 1971.

Akron Flats Engine Show Planned

Albion — The annual Akron Flats steam, tractor and gas engine pioneer show will be held Aug. 26-27, northwest of Albion. A straw scramble for small children and a parade are also scheduled for each day.

Relief From Odor Promised

Omaha (AP) — American Beef Packers Inc. has promised South Omaha residents relief from odors emanating from its plant at 25th and Z streets where blood is processed into feed and fertilizer. Joseph A. Rogers, superintendent of permits and inspections, said the company will install a "wet scrubber" systems to remove offensive odors.

Otoe Fair Official May Be Spared Dunking By New Building Addition

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Syracuse — Otoe County Fair Board secretary Elmer Gellerman has never enjoyed a dunking in the fairgrounds livestock troughs.

Numerous girl contestants in the livestock events, and often the county agent, are customarily dunked on the last day of the fair, but Gellerman has always managed to be elsewhere.

And now that the fairgrounds has a new show areana building complete with showers, he's hoping he'll never experience that thrill.

The new $30,000 metal building was completed Aug. 10, just in time for this week's Otoe County Fair. It has, besides showers, enough extra space to house several dozen cattle pens, lots of bleachers, rest rooms and an office.

"It's a real flexible building," Gellerman said, noting that the interior could be used in a number of ways. "We want to use it throughout the year. We could have beef and dairy breed shows in it, and so on. Or, if anything ever happens to the sales pavilion, we could have our sales in there."

"The kids havt wanted showers for years," Gellerman explained. "Some of the girls show cattle, for example, and then have to go dress for the style show.

"Well, we told them, 'If you'll take care of 'em, we'll build 'em for you."

Besides, if the dunking custom gives way to showers, Gellerman stands a good chance of never being dunked in the livestock troughs.

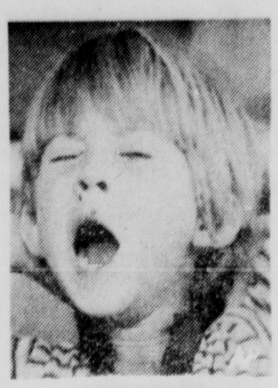
Fair Labor Act Order Cites North Platte Cafe, Bus Depot

U.S. District Judge Richard Dier has issued an order permanently enjoining Adams, Inc., doing business as the Overland Cafe and Greyhound Bus Depot in North Platte from violating the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The court specifically enjoined the firm from failing to pay the minimum wage to employes, from failing to pay at least time and one-half for employes working more than 40 hours per week and from failing to keep adequate records.

According to the petition filed by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson, the firm which operates a bus depot and cafeteria which involves selling tickets and handling baggage and packages, some of which is intended for bus transportation out of state, had been in violation of the law.

The plaintiff contended that the defendants had failed to pay the minimum wage to employes, had failed to compensate for overtime hours and failed to keep adequate records, as required by the law.



SCHOOL

Benjy Barker of Dallas was somewhat less than excited about his first day of school when he entered the first grade at Longfellow Elementary School. Dallas Morning News photographer Lee Langum was there to record the event.

Denton Voters OK Waterworks

Lincoln Star Special

Denton — A waterworks system for this Lancaster County town won approval in a special election here Tuesday.

The $55,000 issue drew 47 votes for, compared to 16 against. Seven mail ballots, to be opened next Monday, cannot change the outcome.

At the present time Denton residents obtain their water supply from individual wells.

James Elrod, village clerk, said it is impossible to estimate when work on the project will start as there are many details to be taken care of first.

Elrod said the issue brought out a real good turnout of voters. This was the first vote on the proposal.

Stamps Planned

London (AP) — Britain plans to issue three postage stamps to commemorate the beginning in 1922 of regular daily radio broadcasting in Britain.

Governor Okays Projects At Hastings And Springfield

Gov. J. J. Exon has approved a pair of construction projects to build a sanitary dumping station at Hastings and a city park at Springfield.

The Hastings project will cost a total of $5,000 with federal funds paying half, and the remainder split between the city and the state.

At Springfield, a total of $55,000 will be spent to acquire the park with the federal funds paying half the cost.

The park will be prepared on 11 acres of land adjoining the Springfield elementary school.

Classes In Ceramics

F Street Recreation Center will offer classes in ceramics from Sept. 5 and 6 through Nov. 7 and 8. The 10-week courses will meet Tuesday or Wednesday nights from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Registration fees are $15.

$15,000 Authorized To Remodel Old Hospital's Nurses Residence

Lancaster County Commissioners Tuesday authorized County Welfare Director J. Earle Trabert to proceed with some $15,000 worth of remodeling necessary to change the former St. Elizabeth's Hospital nurses residence into the proposed women's rehabilitation center.

Trabert told the board that inspections by the city and state fire inspectors resulted in the recommendations for remodeling. Suggestions included installing a fire alarm system, fire detection heads and new doors and replacing old fire hoses and sealing shafts.

In other business, the commissioners appointed Dr. Mary Haworth, a psychologist at the State Penal Complex, as the tenth and final member of the Lancaster Office for Mental Retardation (LOMR) board.

Trabert told the commissioners the board has scheduled an organizational meeting for Sept. 6 at which time the newly-appointed advisory board members will elect officers. Trabert also said he will ask the board to seek an executive director for LOMR.

Trabert has been acting director since John Luebs was suspended from the post several months ago.

In other action, the board placed on file a letter from the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad advising it of plans for placing signal lights and a bell at the crossing near 66th and Cofax. The railroad also announced new policy regarding damage at railroad crossings caused by accidents.

According to the letter, the railroad does not believe it is "fair" for the railroad to absorb the cost of any damage the completed signals may suffer as the result of crossing accidents.

The "equitable and fair" solution would be for the replacement cost to be divided on the same basis as the sharing agreement on original construction, the letter suggested.

Under this agreement, the railroad contributes 10% of the total cost.

The commissionrs recessed their meeting until 10:30 a.m. Thursday to set county and school levies.

Students Seek Injunction To Halt NU Fee Collection

Four University of Nebraska students asked the Nebraska Supreme Court Tuesday to order Lancaster County District Court to issue an injunction halting collection of mandatory student fees at the university.

In the brief filed on behalf of Ralph Larson, Bruce Wimmer, Frederick Otto and Wayne Stuenkel, their attorney asked that the ban be applied to funds for the student newspapers, membership in ASUN and outside speakers and seminars.

Their suit was dismissed last May by District Court Judge Bartlett Boyles.

They contended that the fees were not used for educational purposes but were used to advance certain political viewpoints.

In particular, the brief attacked the Daily Nebraskan at the Lincoln campus asking what educational activity it involved.

"The Daily Nebraskan has no more connection with 'educational activity' than . . . any . . . ordinary newspaper with biased political editorials and news slanting according to the policy of the particular newspaper," they held.

GOP's Platform Draws Criticism From Viet Cong

Paris (UPI) — The Viet Cong Tuesday criticized the Republican Party platform, saying it called for the support of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu at all cost.

"The Republican Party platform glorifies the policy of Vietnamization of the war, repeats President Nixon's May 8 ultimatum and reaffirms support for puppet Nguyen Van Thieu at all cost," a Viet Cong spokesman said.

But Ly Van Sau, official spokesman for the Viet Cong said the war could end "within several days" if the United States dumps Thieu, stops bombing the north and withdraws all U.S. forces.

Proposed Routes For 2 Buses Get Little Reaction

Only two people appeared before the Lincoln Transportation System Board — both testifying in favor of the proposed crosstown route, which would run from 48th and Adams, through a number of east Lincoln commercial centers, to 48th and Pioneers Blvd.

No one appeared in favor or in opposition to the proposed West A-UP route which would provide service from the West A area to Gaslight Village to the Union Pacific Industrial Tract.

The proposed bus routes now go to the LTS Board Thursday for approval and then to the City Council, which also will hold a public hearing on the routes. If approved by the council, the routes could go into effect by mid-September.

Engineer Notes Road Closings

The city Traffic Engineer's Office Tuesday announced the permanent closing of Sherwood Dr. at Fremont and the temporary closing of Touzalin from Fremont to Havelock until Sept. 23 for curb repair and resurfacing.

Board Rejects Complete Renovation For Jail

Omaha (AP) — The Douglas County Board rejected Tuesday the district court judges' preference for renovation of the courthouse jail.

The board voted unanimously to carry out Commissioner Goerge Buglewicz's suggestion that the top-floor jail be brought up to minimum health and safety standards at a cost of $200,000 to $300,000, rather than spending $1 million for complete renovation.

The jail will be used for "intermediate detention purposes" during construction of a new correction center under Buglewicz' plan.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

Aries is capable of leading, dominating, creating and being original. But Aries also seeks a leader, one who is strong enough to direct and one who earns enough respect to be followed. Aries can be a mass of contradictions impulsive and tender, direct and considerate, fiery and sensitive, practical and emotional. If one has any complaints in these areas, remember that Aries never promised anyone a bed of roses. Some famous persons who exemplify the qualities of this zodiacal sign include Marlon Brando, Bette Davis and Andre Previn.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Accent is on doing something fine for family member. Action will be reciprocated. This could start chain reaction which leads to greater happiness, fulfillment. Taurus and Libra persons play important roles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Gain shown if your steps are sure and practical. Means don't attempt the impossible. It's fine to dream. But there are specific matters now which require your attention. Professional superior is in picture.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You get what appeared to be far away. Means chances for success are currently available. Assume responsibility with knowledge that rewards can be ample. Relationships are intensified. Nothing is apt to happen in lukewarm manner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Finish what you start. Leave no loose ends. Aries is likely to be involved. Break free from emotional rut. Give yourself room to think and act. You need not be confined. Your potential is greater than you might think.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Spotlight is on public relations, attention received from special efforts. Legal affairs require review. Questions arise concerning partnership, marriage. Emphasis is on new outlook. Look to future.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home affairs dominate. Friends offer a variety of opinions. Ultimately you will have to trust your own hunches. Health problem is not as serious as it might appear. Vitality returns with proper amount of rest.

LIBRA Sept. 23-Oct .22): You make interesting contacts. You are revitalized. You generally are restless. You want to change status quo. You get chance to do so. Horizons are expanded. What was dull becomes challenging. You're going places!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be bogged down with details. Do what must be done. But don't deny yourself creative opportunities. Aquarius and Leo are likely to be in picture. Thoroughness now pays dividends. Chance for advancement is due.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Accent on movement, the excitement of intellectual discovery. You will be meeting people, discussing various concepts, challenging and being challenged. Accept need for change of scenery.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Purchase of item which makes home a more comfortable place is indicated. Be diplomatic. Display appreciation for beauty. Aquarius and Leo persons are likely to play prominent roles.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Stress individuality. Stick to your own unique style. Others may mean well, but it's best now to heed your own counsel. See in light of reality. Eschew wishful thinking. Face facts as they actually exist.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Much that occurs has flavor of being undercover. Work quietly. Maintain steady pace. Avoid the sensational. Heed voice of experience. What you learned in past is due to bear fruit. You are given more responsibility.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are analytical, often critical; you like clean lines and you abhor waste. Changes were made this year and December should be one of your most significant months of 1972. You harmonize with Gemini, Virgo individuals.

White House Denies Story On Meeting

©The New York Times

Washington — The White House said that Henry A. Kissinger, the president's national security adviser, had "no plans" to meet with an envoy from Egypt or anywhere else if he attends the Olympic Games that begin in Munich this weekend.

The Cairo newspaper, Al Nahar, said that Mohamed Hassanein Heikal, the editor of the newspaper Al Ahram, and a confidante of president Anwar El-Sadat, was going to Munich and would meet with Kissinger there.

But Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, said Kissinger had not yet decided whether to accept the West German invitation to the games. "If he decides to attend, he has no plans to meet with Mr. Heikal, Warren said. "If he goes, he will go solely to see the Olympics.

Police Tow Truck Bungles The Job

Buffalo (AP) — A police tow truck was summoned to Buffalo harbor Tuesday to pull a stolen car out of the water.

While the crew was out of the truck making preparations, the truck suddenly rolled down an old seaplane ramp and splashed into 10 feet of water.

Three other city trucks were called to the scene and pulled the stolen car and the tow truck out of the water.

Former Lincoln Chamber Manager, M. Hurley, Dies

Marvin Hurley

Former Manager

Marvin Hurley, 66, a former general manager of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce from 1941-43, died Tuesday in M. D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, Tex.

Mr. Hurley had been executive vice president of the Houston Chamber of Commerce since 1951.

He entered the chamber field in 1935 as executive secretary of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce and then became assistant manager of the Tulsa, Okla., chamber. He came to Lincoln from Tulsa.

The author of several books, Mr. Hurley was the recipient of the University of Arkansas' distinguished alumnus award and had been elevates to the Arkansas Polytechnic College's Hall of Distinction.

Funeral services have been set for Thursday at 2 p.m. at St. Luke's United Methodist Church, Houston. Burial will be in Forest Park Cemetery West, Houston. Arrangements are being handled by George H. Lewis and Sons Funeral Home at 2500 Sage Road, Houston.

Mr. Hurley is survived by his wife, Marjorie; sons, James Franklin and Gerald Marvin; a sister, Lois of Hector, Ark.; a brother, B. C. of Moreland, Ark.; and four grandchildren.

ELECTRET MICROPHONE

It's the new innovation in hearing aid component design which gives a greatly improved hearing aid performance. It extends the range of an aid in both the low and high frequencies. Distortion, a common hearing aid problem, is reduced considerably.

It allows power without feedback. Thus a much greater volume can be used without causing squeel or distortion of sound. The Electret's design eliminates some delicate connections, thus offering more dependable service, "toughens" hearing aids.

Call or write me for an interesting booklet by MAICO, "The Electret Microphone." Located at 415 Sharp Bldg., Lincoln, Phone 432-8597.

BY LINDA OLIG

My name is Paul Bunyan, and I think I am a person.

Actually, I am the son of Clyde and Clydia, the Chinese Geese, and I live in a pen with a couple of baby Ducks who are my close friends.

Many people get Geese and Ducks mixed up, but I think it is very easy to tell us apart. We Geese are quite proud of our heritage, and that shows in the way we walk — with our heads straight in the air — whereas, our friends, the Ducks, walk with their heads and chests nearly parallel to the ground.

All of my fond admirers here at the Zoo are going to be really sad in a few weeks or so. You see, they have made a pet of me, and say I am really cute with my yellow baby, or Gosling, feathers. But soon I will loose my soft down and turn into an adult Goose with white, white feathers and I also will bear the orange knob on my nose which is characteristic of Chinese Geese. Zoologists can't agree about why we have those huge lumps — many think that it may be for mating purposes, but both males and the females have them.

Also, when I am a little bit older — I am only three weeks of age right now — I will be able to wander around the Zoo to meet our visitors and beg popcorn. By the way, we Ducks and Geese are among the few kinds of animals here that they allow to eat popcorn, and actually encourage people to feed it to us — mainly because it is good for us and we like it so much.

We Chinese Geese originally came from the Orient, where our ancestors were domesticated and used for food. But all varieties of Geese are basically grazing animals, although we also like to eat fish and insects for a little variety.

I already told you that I think I am a person, and that is because Ducks and Geese use a method called 'imprinting' and I will try to tell you in 'people language' what that is all about. It all started before I was born, or hatched. The nice people at the Zoo had to take Clydia's nest away from her because the visitors wouldn't leave the eggs alone. Well, they put them in an incubator and I was the only one to hatch — and, since I wasn't anywhere near my mother, I imprinted on a human being. You see, Ducks and Geese, unless they are raised by their parents, 'adopt' humans or the first big thing they see as their 'parents.'

When I was a day old, they used a process called 'pinioning' on me. That means that the end of my elbow was clipped so I couldn't fly away. That pinioning doesn't hurt a bit, and I lost barely a drop of blood. That method is much better than 'clipping,' which is used on the older birds. 'Clipping' means that they clip the wings, but it only takes two months for the feathers to grow out, so they must be clipped and re-clipped all of the time. Pinioning is a once in a lifetime experience for baby birds like me.

There are three other kinds of Geese here at the Zoo. The other domesticated variety is represented by Ivan, the Russian Sebastapol Goose — and he really looks like a Cossack, with his determined waddle. His white feathers stick out all over the place and are quite unruly.

The wild Geese include the Snow and Canadian which both migrate over Nebraska where they feed on corn fields and stop at open pools — and those stops are often the death of them, for the hunters wait for them near the pools. However, without the hunters, the population of those Geese would really get out of hand.

The Snow Goose is white with black tail feathers, while the Canadian Goose has a brown body with black head and tail feathers — and white rings under his eyes.

All of us are aggressive birds. We honk and hiss a lot, and our defense against being chased is to give our chaser a whack or a pinch with our beaks —but we all get along fairly well with our visitors at the zoo.

Dining with Wine

Much of the social activity planned in this area centers around football game victory celebrations. In the past few years many Nebraskans have enjoyed the Saturday afternoon thrills and topped off the day with hard liquor parties that made them wish they had no reason to celebrate.

Many such affairs have already been scheduled and these provide the host with an opportunity to entertain all of his quests in a manner which will please and delight everyone — without the head-aches.

For a truly different and thoroughly enjoyable activity in which everyone — young and old alike — may participate a wine tasting is the "in" thing. Whether it is served as part of a victory banquet or just sampled with snack items such as bread, cheese or fruit, it is unbeatable as a means of inducing pleasant conversation. No one gets "high" and tasting different wines provides a new sensation with each type.

The hunting season — hardly more than a month away — is also the time when something new and enjoyable may be added to a feast following a successful trip to the fields after the elusive pheasant or other upland bird. For no matter how the pheasant is prepared there is no better way to enjoy this bird than with a bottle of wine such as Chateu-Neuf-du-Pape Domaine du Grand Coulet 1966—a truly great red Rhone wine. To further enhance the flavor of pheasant it should always be prepared with wine—all good cooks recommend it.

The duck hunting season finds many nimrods in their blinds before dawn waiting for a shot at teal or mallard. This game bird should be cooked in wine and a great one for this choice morsel would be a red Bordeaux such as Chateau Royal 1966, a featured wine from the Chateau Cantemerle regarded by many as a rival of the fabulous Mouton-Rothschild.

Seasonal foods such as oysters or clams are enjoyed by many — and none should be served without a glass of white Burgundy such as Valmur Chablis Grand Cru 1970. It is a crisp, dry and magnificent — one of the greatest white wines in the world and always in short supply. For an extra treat, if only once in a lifetime, serve a wine such as Montrachet-Marquis de LaGuiche 1967—a wine which should be enjoyed on bended knees with ones head bowed in prayer.

The turkey — almost an American institution — gets a lot of attention during the fall months. Its flavor and enjoyment are greatly enanced by either a full-bodied Rhine wine such as Erbacher-Marcobrunner Reisling 1970 or even a light, fragrant red wine such as Beringer Cabernet Sauvignon Estate Bottled Vintage 1970 — a California Varietal which rivals the best of the French wines.

When planning any affair at which food is served it is well to remember that the greatest appetite-provoking drink is a cocktail sherry or a Rainwater Madeira — never hard liquor which destroys the appetite and prevents one from fully enjoying the taste of good food. There are few better apertifs than Beringer Brothers Fino Cocktail Sherry or Miles Rainwater Madeira.

The Nebraska football season begins Saturday September 9th—GO BIG RED and go with Wine. Now is the time to lay in your supply—while the August sales are on.

For Men Only

Angela Taylor of the New York Times News Service, has a few words in which the masculine element will be profoundly interested—and here they are:

New York—What do Mark Twain, Muhammad Ali, Tom Wolfe, Wyatt Cooper and Kevin McCarthy have in common? They've frequently played the role of the man in the white suit.

"Every well-dressed gentleman has a white suit," declared Morton Sills the other day, as he was measuring McCarthy for a new suit to replace the five-year-old white linen the actor wears with white moccasins.

The white suit is, of course, traditional to the south, conjuring up goateed gentlemen in flowing ties, rocking on verandahs with endless glasses of mint juleps in their hands. "My grandfather in Mississippi wore one summer and winter," recalled Wyatt Cooper, the magazine editor, who joined his wife, Gloria Vanderbilt, on the best-dressed list three years ago.

In the colder north, the "ice cream" or "good humor" suit had a swirl with the Ivy Leaguers of the 1950's, who wore it well-wrinkled and with scuffed, white buck shoes. (Their other choice was the equally mussed blue and white seersucker, a fashion which has managed to survive, possibly because it moved smoothly into the wash-and-wear fabrics.) But except for a few diehards and such transplanted southerners as Cooper and Tom Wolfe, the pop journalist, the man in the white suit disappeared in the smoky air of the big cities.

But the signs are that he's reappearing. Perhaps because of the tropical heat of the current New York summer, men seem to have taken to the ice cream suit again. Dick Cavett wore one recently on his talk show (a vanilla-cream one, because pure white is too hard under television lights), while John Gilroy, the show's producer, hovered in the wings in a natty, homogenized milk-colored affair.

Harry Thomas, a publisher, strolled through Times Square in white linen, complete with Mark Twain vest. Thomas lives in Montreal and owns several white suits—"I wear them a lot."

The theater district was a summer festival of white — or very pale—suits this week. Cyril Ritchard, the actor, dashed off to his role in "Sugar" wearing a melange of cream shades and a panama hat. A beautifully-pressed white suit belonged to William Haynie, who explained in a southern accent that he came from Gulfport, Miss., where white suits are plentiful.

Bridal Gowns For Fall

Traditional yet individual, the Fall bride wants the best of both worlds. Some wedding dresses come in non-bridal fabrics like mat jersey and marocain crepe with simple lines and all the high fashion trends: dolman sleeves, Chinese looks, shirtwaists. But also coming down the aisle are elaborately beaded and laced "Nicholas and Alexandra" gowns, long trains and demure full-skirted Victorians. The ensemble look, with the bride and attendants in similar gowns is a big trend. Faille, taffeta, silk-faced peau de soie and sometimes velvet are the fabric winners. On the head; high medieval caps, hoods, turbans, maid's caps and voluminous veils.

WE HEAR THAT

Mr. and Mrs. Don Van Arsdall of Meridian, Miss., who formerly resided in Lincoln, are the proud parents of a bouncing baby boy, Daniel D., who made his arrival on Sunday, Aug. 20. Mr. Van Arsdall is stationed at Meridian with the U.S. Navy, and he and his family plan to return next month to Lincoln, where they will make their permanent home. The newcomer's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Herb Van Arsdall and Marvin Bye.

Chit-Chat with Roxi

Dear Roxi:

My mother remarried recently. Her new husband and I aren't exactly hitting it off. I'm miserable. I think the only reason he is nice to me is because of Mom. I get the feeling he can't stand me. What am I going to do?

A. First of all analyze the reasons behind your feelings. That may be the first step in coping with them. Secondly realize that you wouldn't want your mother to be alone and now she isn't. She has two people to love her and if you try hard enough you can open your heart and let your new father become a part of your life.

Dear Roxi:

Do you know what it is like to be left-handed? I do because I am. I am the only left-handed member of the family and I am beginning to think my family is ashamed of me. No kidding. They avoid taking me places where being left handed makes me more noticed. What is there to do. I'm becoming a hermit.

A. Become a hermit because you're left handed? How ridiculous! So you're left-handed. Plenty of people are and they seem to lead prosperous lives so why can't you? And as for your family's treatment of you, I think part of it is your imagination. Concentrate on being you for what you are and accept the fact you're left-handed. There is nothing you can do about it.

Dear Roxi:

I really would like to learn to sew but everytime I start I get disinterested almost immediately. How can I stay interested?

A. Concentration. If you want to learn to do something badly enough you'll do it. It is that extra something from inside that is the pushing element and only you can supply that.

Dear Roxi:

I have been dating two guys. I like them both, but when I'm with the one I feel like I'm below him, like I'm constantly on edge. When I'm with the other one I don't feel that way at all. I can be myself. Why do I feel that way I mean differently about two guys when I like both of them?

A. Because those two guys are individuals. And with an individual comes individual feelings.

Do you have a problem or question? If so write Chit Chat with Roxi in care of the Lincoln Star.

Wesleyan Coed Is August Bride

On Friday evening, Aug. 18, the wedding of Miss Mary Ann Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Swanson of Holdrege, and Scott Randall Pettis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard E. Pettis, also of Holdrege, was solemnized at the United Methodist Church in Holdrege. The lines of the 7 o'clock ceremony were read by the Rev. James Irwin.

The threesome of attendants included Miss Terri Beedle of Holdrege, the maid of honor; and bridesmaids Miss Vickie Frisbie of Omaha and Miss Sue Gates.

Mike Denker of Lexington served as best man, and the groomsmen and ushers included Jerry Metcalf of Scottsbluff, Donn Nelson, Bob Swanson, and Mike Pettis, all of Holdrege; Bill Roux, and Mark Palmer of Kearney.

The bride appeared in a gown of peau de soie in the ivory tone and Mexican lace, designed in the Empire mode. The lace contoured the sheer yoke of the bodice, and was repeated to ornament the Victorian collar and the leg o' mutton sleeves. The softly gathered A-line silhouette skirt extended into a train of chapel length, and a Camelot cap of the lace held to the head her train-length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of feathered carnations, stephanotis, and pink gypsophelia.

Mr. Pettis and his bride will reside in Lincoln.

The bride is a senior at Nebraska Wesleyan University where she is majoring in psychology and where she is affiliated with Delta Zeta sorority. Mr. Pettis is a senior at the University of Nebraska where his major is construction science. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

MISS JOYCE TeSELLE

This morning announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Joyce TeSelle, daughter of Mrs. Norman TeSelle of Firth, and the late Mr. TeSelle, to Richard B. Harms, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harms of Pickrell.

The wedding will take place in March.

Mr. Harms is associated with the Pickrell Co-Op.

A Postponed Reunion Takes Place

It was to have been a birthday celebration — last March, that is — when Alex Benzel would have beeen celebrating his 85th birthday. Even the best laid plans, of course, can go astray — and did. So, last March there was no family reunion.

But last weekend was a different story. Mr. Benzel and all of his daughters were together at one and the same time, something that hadn't happened for 20 years.

On Saturday evening Mr. Benzel entertained his family at dinner at Eastmont, and Sunday afternoon the partying moved to the home of Mr. Benzel's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Becker.

In the picture, and surrounding Mr. Benzel, are Mrs. Henry Zieg (far right), Mrs. Paul C. Miller of Washington D.C.: Mrs. Marvin Miller of Waterloo, Iowa, who is seated next to her father, and at the far right — Mrs. Becker.

1 Every Woman's No. 1 Trouble Spot. At least 400 times during a woman's lifetime the uterus—or womb — must "prepare" for pregnancy. Here are the seldom appreciated facts about this complicated monthly ritual—with important information about excessive bleeding, the common condition known as fibroids, pregnancy itself, and the problem of cancer.

2 When Your Husband's Affection Cools—and What to Do About It. He's often silent, moody. His sex drive seems alarmingly low. Is it your fault? Or his? Dr. Joyce Brothers tells you how to size up the situation, explains how it can happen in any marriage, and offers 6 commonsense rules for putting your relationship on a better footing.

3 Can Early Schooling Harm Your Child? Educators across the country are pressing for earlier schooling. Yet there is mounting evidence that late starters do better in the long run. Age 7 or even age 8 may in fact be the ideal time to begin! Don't miss this provocative article – including information about a new program called Home Start.

4 $6.95 Book Condensed: "The Operation". It began with a blinking light in Fred Miller's left eye. Then came the unnerving "slide show" of half-forgotten scenes floating up from his past. Diagnosis: brain tumor. Stand side by side with surgeon Francis Dietrich—in this stunning documentary—as he probes for the hidden killer. You will find it thoroughly absorbing – and unforgettable.

5 The New TV Is Coming Your Way. Like to have your choice of ten or more channels, all with perfect reception? Like to tune in current movies? How about a two-way set that lets you "talk back?" (They're already testing it in some parts of the country. And you may be getting it soon.) Here are the fascinating details.

6 Who's to Blame for Inflation? Are you a "shiftless shopper?" An "insurance inflator?" A "goldbrick?" If so, then you yourself are contributing to the wage-price spiral. Here's a checklist of inflationary actions and attitudes, with advice on how to replace government controls with self control.

7 How to Stop the VD Epidemic. Birth control pills have made women more susceptible to venereal disease. Today over half a million women have gonorrhea and do not know it. Here are the facts—and a full report on how we can and must cope with what has recently become a nationwide epidemic.

8 Postscripts From the "Favored Sex". How do American women really feel about Lib? Do they believe, as writer Elsieliese Thrope recently stated, that women are the "favored sex?" Or do they feel underpaid, underprivileged, and underestimated? Here's a cross-section of current opinion, volunteered by women from all over the country.

9 A Time for Toughness in America. Former Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally warns that we can no longer afford to let our allies impose unequal trade restrictions. Why should Canada, Japan, and Western Europe build up surpluses at our expense? Here are the facts and a tough, competitive platform for strengthening the U. S. economy.

10 The New Collectibles: Political Buttons. A George Washington campaign button, that cost a penny to make, is now valued at $500. And even a McKinley poster will fetch over a hundred dollars. Here are full-color illustrations of campaign novelties dating back to 1789. Read how in many cases they did indeed affect the outcome of a Presidential election.

11 Why Women Must Speak Out Against Pornography. Spreading from such centers as New York and Los Angeles, the pornography blight has lately invaded small cities in Maine, Iowa, Kansas, and elsewhere. Yet case histories show that local women's groups can turn back the tide. Here's how it's done—how you can get X-rated films, "model" studios, and "adult" books banned from your community.

12 What You Should Know About New-Car Options. Should you choose a V-8? Or settle for a 6? What about heavy-duty suspension, radial tires, disc brakes, etc? In this informative article an expert tells you what your decision should be, based on safety, comfort, and economy.

Know Your Antiques

(Taylor and Dull)

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Louis Comfort Tiffany designed and made glass and bronze for almost 20 years before he created the first of his famous lamps. Mr. Tffany made two center-hanging lights for churches in 1893. For the next few years, he worked on hanging fixtures, student lamps and blown glass oil lamps.

The first of the leaded glass shade lamps was made in 1899. The dragonfly, the nautilus and the tyler scroll lamps were the first ones made. In later years, Tiffany made over 500 different lamp shades and over 500 different lamp bases. These could be combined in many ways.

After 1902, the model number of the lamp base was stamped on the bottom of the lamp, and the lamp shade model number was often put on a metal plate inside the lampshade. The glass was numbered only if the lamp shade was made of blown, not leaded, glass.

Q. My copper kettle is very old. I read that Paul Revere marked all his pieces with his name or with P.R. My kettle has the name Revere in a triangle, could this be one of his?

A. Paul Revere was a silversmith and engraver. He never used his name in a triangle as a trade mark. You must own a piece of copper from the present day Revere company that makes copperwares for the kitchen.

Q. "Linthorpe" is impressed on the bottom of my pottery vase. What would this mean?

A. Linthorpe Pottery Works was founded in England in 1879. They made what is now referred to as art pottery. The pieces made by the firm, run by Henry Tooth and William Aut with designer Dr. Christopher Dresser, were well accepted and artistically made. Over 350 designs were made. Many of them were signed by Dresser.

The founders of the firm disagreed or lost interest and they went out of business by 1889. Many other potteries of the arts and crafts movement were working in England at the same time. You might look for pieces marked Moorcroft, Bretby, Ruskin, Burmantoft, or Ault. All of these art potteries are sure to be popular with collectors.

Q. I am worried about some pieces of dark blue glass with white enameled pictures of children. Is Mary Gregory glass being reproduced?

A. Yes, in quantity:

BOOK REVIEW

Two thousand bottles are pictured in the excellent book "Bottles in Canada" by Unitt (Clock House Publications, P. O. Box 103, Peterborough, Ontario, Canada. $17.50). Detailed histroy of bottle styles and manufacture is included.

Bottle collecting is one of the most popular hobbies in America. Collectors will want to read the Kovels' booklet, "Books about Bottles." For your copy, send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ralph an Terry Kovel in care of this newspaper.

Abby: ignore the needle

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man who has not called my by my first name for the past 20 years.

If the phone rings and it's for me, he will look at me and say, "Telephone".

He will ask, "What do you want from the store?" Or, "Who's coming over?"

At times he communicates with me thru the children by saying, "Tell your mother, etc."

Yes, I have asked him hundreds of times to kindly use my name. His answer, "Why is it so important to you?"

Why should a man refuse to call his wife by her first name? During the honeymoon years he called me "Baby," and "Snooky," but that's long gone. Sign me,

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: YOU may be nameless, but there are several names for a man who deliberately needles his wife for 20 years. He probably derives a sadistic pleasure out of your reaction. Try ignoring it and see what happens.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with one 16-year-old daughter. She is good stable girl and never gave me any problems. She started going steady with a very nice young boy of 17. Thru this boy I met his divorced father. We took an instant liking to each other, and are now going together.

At first the children thought it an amusing novelty, mother and daughter dating father and son. Now they are concerned because if the father and I should marry, they will become legally sister and brother and should they want to marry later on, they won't be able to.

Another problem comes to mind. If the father and I marry, how about two young people who are romantically involved sharing the same house?

THINKING AHEAD

DEAR THINKING: If you and the father should marry, your children will be related by marriage, not blood, and they can marry if they so choose. As for the other problem, if your daughter is "stable," you'll not have to worry about her horsing around.

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals...

Opening lead—jack of hearts.

Dear Mr. Becker: I have read a lot of bridge books in my day, and zillions of bridge columns too, and the one thing that impresses itself on me is that most of these writers don't know what they're talking about.

They advocate bids and plays I can't fathom. For example, they think it's best to lead from weakness to strength, but my experience tells me it's better to lead from strength to weakness.

I played this hand the other day and held the South cards. Most players would swear it is impossible to make four spades with this layout, since declarer apparently must lose two spades, a heart, two diamonds and a club, but I can tell you quite frankly that this is an obsession on their part on how to play a hand.

West led the heart jack and I went up with the ace. In line with my theory I played the four of hearts next and was not surprised to win it with the ten. Some people will say the reason East didn't play the king was because he was afraid I had the singleton five, but I personally think it was due to his unfamiliarity with my advanced style of play.

I then led the three of clubs, a play you won't find in any book, and West, confused by my technique, let me win with the jack.

Next I again demonstrated the beauty of my methods when I led the five of spades from dummy. East naturally played low and my seven forced the ace.

There is no use in my going on with this recitation because, as you can see, my king of spades later caught the queen and all I lost was a trump and two diamonds, thus making four spades. I hope you see what I mean. Sincerely yours ,I.X. Hail.

Meeting Topics

Mrs. B. Reynolds, vice president of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club, presided at that group's dinner meeting, which was held at the Northeast Holiday Inn on Monday evening, Aug. 21.

Topic mistress Miss Edith Lumsden asked Mrs. Irvin Mahoney, Mrs. Robert Herman, Miss Jan Elsasser, and Mrs. Wallace Peterson to speak on how they have met emergencies.

Mrs. E. L. Reeker, acting toastmistress for the evening introduced the theme, "Let's Share A Book."

Addressing the members were Mrs. Peterson, who reported on "Only One Earth"; Mrs. Reynolds, "Yiddish For Yankees"; and Miss Cora Mae Briggs, "The Cracker Barrel."

The meeting was evaluated by Mrs. Herman.

Why Grow Old?

Physical deterioration is accumulative. We see the first few lines around our eyes and worry so much about them that we get more lines. We notice the first 10 pounds and lull ourselves into calmness by thinking, "I will do something about that tomorrow" or, "Anyway, I am just beginning to get the middle-age spread and I have to expect that."

So, the first lines go uncared for and deepen and more come. The first 10 pounds soon turn into 20. The fine posture of youth gradually becomes stooped with the weight of years and all of this leads to a negative attitude, an I-give-up feeling, so far as physical attractiveness is concerned.

If we would apply energy and modern techniques when the first signs of aging appear, we could slow up the process greatly. For example, we get the little fine lines around our eyes early in life because the skin in this area is thin and does not have the support which other facial contour has. If we would assiduously care for the first lines, we could improve them and avoid others. Practically every woman past 30 needs an eye cream. This should be patted in gently around the eyes at night and should be left on all night. These creams do not create an unattractive appearance.

If you have had the I-give-up attitude for a long time, this is most likely reflected in overweight, a matronly figure, deep facial lines, poor posture, fatigue, a middle-aged outlook, poor grooming and a disinterest in clothes. All of this means you look years older than you need look and you are not enjoying life as you could.

Physical deterioration affects women in many subtle ways. Personality suffers through self-consciousness, and a woman is apt to give up sports and take a back seat psychologically. Even if you have neglected yourself for a long time, you can make a startling improvement if you will faithfully follow a daily routine. After the first two weeks you will feel that the change is worth the effort. Before that, you will have to depend on faith and will power.

If you wish to have my calorie chart leaflet No. 36, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of The Lincoln Star.

FOOD

coffee bread is worth the effort

Fresh Bartlett pears bake up tender and juicy in a pair of sweet and spicy coffee breads. Serve one warm from the oven for a mid-morning coffee break. Reserve the other for an inviting after-school snack for the youngsters.

To make the Pear Crescent Coffee Bread, a rich lemon accented yeast dough is rolled jelly-roll fashion around a filling of juicy diced fresh Bartlett pears spinkled with brown sugar, spices and chopped pecans. The dough is curved into crescent shapes, slashed at intervals on the top, and allowed to rise. When double in size, the crescents are baked to a golden brown, cooled and spread with Cinnamon Satin Icing.

PEAR CRESCENT COFFEE BREAD

2 cups diced fresh pears
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 package dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
1 cup scalded milk
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup shortening
1 teaspoon salt
3 to 3½ cups flour
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 egg, slightly beaten
3 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
½ cup chopped pecans
Cinnamon Satin Icing

Peel and dice pears. Sprinkle with lemon juice and set aside. Dissolve yeast in warm water. Combine scalded milk with sugar, shortening and salt. Stir until shortening is melted. Cool to lukewarm. Add one cup of the flour and blend thoroughly. Stir in dissolved yeast, lemon peel and beaten egg. Mix in remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on floured surface and knead gently. Place in greased bowl. Cover and let rise until double in bulk. Punch down and divide dough. Roll out each half to 12x9-inch rectangle. Brush with melted butter. Spread diced pears over dough. Combine brown sugar, spices and pecans and sprinkle over pears. Roll up as for jelly roll, sealing ends. Place on greased baking sheet and shape into crescents. Make slashes with scissors on top about 1-inch apart. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake at 350 degrees for 25-30 minutes, until golden brown. Spread tops with Cinnamon Stain Icing. Makes 2 crescents.

CINNAMON SATIN ICING

1 cup powdered sugar
1 tablespoon softened butter
Milk
¼ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Combine sugar, butter and enough milk to blend until smooth and of spreading consistency. Add vanilla and cinnamon and mix thoroughly. Spread on cooled Pear Crescents.

Sailor's Cookies

There is just one difficult thing about these cookies—The recipe is simple, they're easy to put together, and the only difficult part comes after you have taken them from the oven—and that is resisting the temptation to devour them on the spot.

Here is the recipe:

4¼ cups unsifted flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
1½ teaspoons ground ginger
½ teaspoon ground cloves
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground allspice
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine
1 cup sugar
1 cup dark molasses
⅓ cup water
2 tablespoons rum

Blend together flour, salt, baking soda, ginger, cloves, nutmeg and allspice; set aside.

Cream together butter or margarine and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in molasses. Combine water and rum and add alternately with flour mixture beginning and ending with the flour mixture. Chill at least 4 hours.

On a well-floured board roll ½ dough to ¼-inch thickness. Cut into 3-inch rounds using a floured cutter. Place on greased baking sheets about 2 inches apart. Bake at 375° F. about 12 minutes, or until done. Place on wire racks to cool. Repeat with remaining dough and scraps. Makes about 3 dozen.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

"Cruise the Caribbean! Ten perfect days!"

Columbus discovered Puerto Rico on his second voyage to the New World. He stopped in to fill his water casks.

The land was full of gentle Borinquen Indians — not the fierce, man-eating Caribs who looked on the Spaniards as so much supermarket.

He landed at Aquadilla, Aguada, Boqueron Bay and Anasco — according to what chamber of commerce you belong to. Each of the West Coast towns claim Columbus landed at that town. (Anasco Bay seems most likely.

Columbus noted that the water was muddy in the river — and sailed on.

Among his 1,500 gentlemen adventurers was Juan Ponce de Leon. In later years, Juan came back. He developed the real estate and put the Indians to work on housing projects.

(Over on nearby Viecques, the Caribs got out their barbecue sets and their chef's aprons with funny sayings: "How about Juan before dinner").

He built the greatest fortifications of Spain in the rum-and-sugar islands.

And treasure fleets stopped here on the long voyage home. And in the church tower, the bells rang a benediction to protect them from the cruising French, Dutch and English ships over the blue horizon.

The island is roughly oblong — 100 miles long and 30 miles wide. Its population density is one of the world's highest — 750 people to each square mile.

In Spanish days, yellow fever struck through the breezy mansions. And death fell suddenly in the streets.

From 1898, when we took it from Spain, to 1952, when it became an independent commonwealth, it was known as "the Yankee poorhouse of the Caribbean."

Now the island economy is booming. The dreadful squatters' shacks are gone. Low-rent housing is everywhere.

Public health has licked yellow fever and given people a living diet.

During the poorhouse days, Puerto Ricans migrated to the United States at the rate of 70,000 a year.

In New York, the migrating Puerto Rican found a cruel world.

In the long Spanish days, the population mixed — Spanish, Indians, Negro slaves. American and British adventurers. Danish sea captains and Dutch merchants.

It was a shock to a migrating Puerto Rican to find in the United States that he was classed as a Negro — and subject to all racial inequalities.

For four hundred years he has been Spanish — and white so far as equality went.

A lot of them are coming back now. And so the island population grows and grows.

The Puerto Rican is a United States citizen. But he is also a Puerto Riqueno — a member of a commonwealth "freely associated" with the United States.

He gets state aid. But he is not a citizen of one of the United States.

He pays no U.S. income tax. But he gets back the taxes paid on his products by U.S. mainland citizens. Rum taxes for example.

He uses American money and American post offices and stamps. U.S. Public Health guards his well-being.

But he speaks Spanish at home and in his schools. And his heart belongs to Spain, where he often vacations and often retires.

Release Of Prisoners Is Offered By South Vietnamese Government

Saigon (AP) — The South Vietnamese government offered Tuesday to release 600 disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war. Western diplomatic sources viewed the proposal as a propaganda move that Hanoi probably would reject.

A similar proposal to release 570 sick and disabled North Vietnamese prisoners of war in June 1971 was unsuccessful. The Saigon government produced only 13 who accepted repatriation. Even they never returned because the North Vietnamese publicly rejected the plan as a hoax.

The South Vietnamese Foreign Ministry, in its latest offer, called on North Vietnam to propose a time and place for receiving the prisoners, and a limited cease-fire to allow for the release.

The Foreign Ministry said it was making the gesture to mark Vu Lan, the Buddhist All Soul's Day festival that begins Wednesday.

The government termed the proposal "a unilateral decision in accordance with humanitarian policy." But the western diplomatic sources said that for Hanoi to agree to accept such a large number of prisoners would mean the Communists would have to give something in return to stay in the propaganda war.

"I don't think they are prepared to release American prisoners of war at this time," one source said.

In Washington, however, the State Department expressed hope that Hanoi would respond by freeing American prisoners. A spokesman, John King,said South Vietnam acted on its own initiative but was in close consultation with the United States.

The announcement by the Foreign Ministry made no mention of whether the disabled prisoners had been screened in advance to determine whether they would agree to return to the North. This is required by the Geneva Convention. The Saigon government failed to do this when it made its 1971 proposal.

FOUND

Fred Hubbard, a former alderman in Chicago, has been found in Gardena, Calif., according to the Chicago office of the FBI. He is charged with embezzling more than $100,000 from a federal program.

Special Regulation Offered

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission told businessmen Tuesday they can make as much profit as possible if they cut prices to a level not higher than the level of either Aug. 15, 1971, or May 25, 1970.

The offer came in a special regulation designed to allow everybody to gain something, according to commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson Jr.

"Consumers win because there are reductions in prices or direct refunds," said Grayson in a statement, "and the company comes out ahead because it is allowed flexibility in its profit margin. We hope this idea spreads."

"The new regulation removes profit-margin restrictions if firms voluntarily reduce prices to the level that existed when President Nixon froze prices last August or to the level of May 25, 1970, whichever is higher.

The regulation might appeal, for example, to firms who believe they could do enough business despite lower prices to increase their profit margin, Grayson said.

Companies that want to take the commission up on it, however, must do all they can to find past customers and make refunds equalling reductions from present levels to the 1970 or 1971 level. If refunds cannot be made, then the firms must lower prices enough to offset revenue derived from the price increases they have rescinded.

Young Rich Funding McGovern

The New York Times

New York — Millions of dollars in donations and loans have flowed into the McGovern campaign, largely from a small group of young millionaires whose wealth is mostly inherited and whose concern is more often with social issues than with a future ambassadorship or cabinet post.

Some of the donors are heirs to industrial fortunes. Others have made their money on Wall Street or in business. Among them are an organic farmer from Oregon, a 24-year-old law student from New York and a youthful Harvard professor.

Some of the young millionaires are working in McGovern campaign headquarters, and most of them share a desire for anonymity. Some have been assigned the job of finding other like-minded young money-givers.

Notwithstanding the large loans and contributions received from rich donors, however, about 90% of all the funds received for the McGovern campaign have been under $100, according to Henry Kimelman, McGovern's finance chief.

Kimelman said 45,000 contributions had been received in the last month. The big loans are being used partly to finance direct mail appeals and voter registration efforts, he said, and are being repaid from the small contributions.

Among the wealthy young givers is Alan Davis, whose family made its fortune in the insurance business. He is working in the New York McGovern headquarters on a program called "the age of McGovern," a fund-raising effort aimed at the under-30 generation.

Davis, 24, a third-year law student at New York University, has made loans and outright gifts in excess of six figures, according to sources in the McGovern organization.

Why?

Why did he help to finance McGovern? "A man who speaks for the people needs an alternative source of support," he said in a telephone interview. His (McGovern's) main interest is in people, and I think he will set an example of people getting along with each other."

Another young McGovern supporter is Morris Dees, 35, a civil rights lawyer from Montgomery, Ala., who works in the senator's Washington campaign headquarters and has lent more than $190,000 to the election effort.

Dees, who was born on a small farm and made his fortune in the book publishing business, said he saw President Nixon as a "severe threat to our civil liberties."

"In addition to the war," he said, "which is a major issue, my interest is in getting Nixon out of there. For one thing, I'm upset about his appointments to the Supreme Court."

Another wealthy young contributor, is Julian Price, 31, whose fortune comes from a North Carolina insurance business started by his grandfather.

Price, a graduate of Guilford College in North Carolina, is now an organic farmer in Ashland, Ore. He has given $65,000 to McGovern since meeting the South Dakota senator last spring in Oregon.

"I guess it was (his views on) the war that first attracted me to McGovern," he said. "Also, I don't feel the Republicans are providing an open, generous, giving sort of leadership."

Max Factor III

Among the well-known names who are working for McGovern and contributing to his campaign are Max Factor III, from the cosmetics family, and Stewart R. Mott III, the Gentral Motors heir.

Factor, 26, made a $50,000 loan to the campaign, of which $30,000 has been paid back, he said. The young lawyer has worked on a series of projects for McGovern's Washington campaign office, and is currently in the office of Sargent Shriver, the Democratic-vice-presidential candidate.

Factor, who is a graduate of Harvard College and Yale Law School, said he looked for McGovern to give the country a "sense of identify."

Mott, 34, probably the best-publicized of the young millionaires, said he had given, lent or pledged more than $500,000 toward the primary and general election campaigns of McGovern.

If McGovern is elected, Mott said that he would like to work on special projects such as a study of population growth or a committee on philanthropy and the private sector.

He pointed out, however, that most of the young givers were not concerned about jobs with a McGovern administration, and there were few quid pro quos.

A number of the wealthy McGovern supporters are from the West Coast. Miles L. Rubin, for example, is chairman of optical systems corporation in Los Angeles, a cable communications concern.

Rubin, 42, a businessman, is in charge of soliciting large gifts for McGovern, and has used $150,000 of his own money on behalf of the senator, of which about $100,000 was a loan.

Part of his enthusiasm for McGovern, Rubin said, stems from a feeling that the senator would "reduce wasted spending for defense, and reallocate those funds."

Save 25¢. And let your taste settle the salad dressing question, once and for all.

In salad dressing, it's flavor that counts. Miracle Whip Salad Dressing's lively fresh flavor comes from a special blend of spices and a blending secret that is Kraft's alone. Miracle Whip is perfect just the way it is. Once you compare it with some of the "me-too" dressings we're sure you'll agree, no matter what, there's only one Miracle Whip. And that's why Miracle Whip makes a sandwich, a salad, seafood or cold cuts taste so fresh and lively. And why Miracle Whip is America's favorite salad dressing.

I just purchased a can of shrimp in a standard tuna fish size can for 20c more than I did just a few days ago. Who is getting the profit increase on this can?

—William Moore, Seward

ACTION LINE: A check with a local outlet of the store you mentioned in your inquiry reveals that there is a can on the shelves at near the price you used to pay and another can of the same size containing the same kind of shrimp only deveined at about 20c more. First check the cans to make sure the products in the old can and the new are identical. Either you or the store's shelf stocker could easily have confused the regular with the deveined variety.

Then, if you are convinced that there is a discrepancy, visit with your store manager. Zone price books for the product indicate that the 20c more is too much even for seafood though prices for ocean products are skyrocketing.

I joined a book club in connection with a subscriptiption Evergreen Review. When I forgot to send in a card saying I didn't want a book from the club, the book was sent. About that same time, the magazine stopped coming. I'm holding the book ransom for the rest of the magazines. Am I legally obligated to pay for this book? And where are my magazines?

—M.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The book you received came to you under the terms of a "negative option selling" agreement. Almost all book and record clubs use this method of selling and it is binding. When you sign to join the club you agree to accept the merchandise unless you indicate within a set time that you don't want it. You'll have to pay for the book or return it.

As for your subscription, the publisher admits to a six-month delay in publication and says that the next edition of the Evergreen Review should be in your home by September.

Whatever happened to the Austrian pines along Holdrege near 48th that were removed for street changes? They were supposed to be saved for some special project, I thought...

—Tree Lover, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The 48 trees were sawed into 67 logs and are now drying under the care of the Parks and Recreation Department, according to Dick Hilligus, superintendent of parks.

At least 20 different suggestions have been made for the use of the timber. Hilligus says that it will probably be used in some project at Wilderness Park.

My husband has interspersed employment at Burlington-Northern with school for several years. During that time he has made contributions to a retirement fund. Now that he's through at the railroad and going into another job, we wonder if he will ever see that retirement money again.

—G.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: According to C. R. Vergith, chief clerk at Burlington-Northern, the Railroad Retirement Act provides that if your husband has worked less than 120 months with the railroad, his contributions at age 65 will go toward Social Security. If he has worked a total of more than 120 months with the railroad, he will receive a retirement pension from the railroad as well as any Social Security he may be eligible for from other work.

Can you find out where I can get plastic mirrors about 3 inches in diameter that could be used in making "Me Dolls?" The dolls are used in speech therapy, I believe. It's important that the mirrors which are used as the head of the doll be non-shatterable.

—D.H., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The "Me Doll" is the idea of Geraldine R. Naunheim of Normandy, Mo., a self-described "old grandmother." She says she was upset by reports that modern children have no "self concept" and invented the dolls to help kids discover themselves. They have since proved useful in some therapy work.

Mrs. Naunheim now produces the dolls herself but hopes to go into mass production soon. Patent proceedings have nearly been completed by Mrs. Naunheim who declines to have you produce the dolls.

This summer a man called on the phone and offered me magazine subscriptions. I wasn't sure what he was offering, so I said I might be interested but to send me further information. Now I'm getting letters referring to a signed order. I never signed anything and don't want the magazines.

—B.B.B., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Richard W. Gage of Periodical Publishers' Service Bureau in Omaha, says that after your order was placed by a salesman on June 16, he personally contacted you to confirm the order.

Gage says he checks all orders to see if they're valid since once the subscriptions are submitted to the publishers, his company can't get its money back except through your payment. Gage says you said you wanted the magazines.

It takes about six months to stop a subscription and if you don't pay, it will be stopped. Gage told ACTION LINE he was sorry since he thought his firm had taken all the necessary steps to confirm your intentions.

Loan Favored Guaranteed

Washington (UPI) -- Federally guaranteed loans are most popular with middle-income parents looking for ways to finance a college education for a child. Conference Set For Wesleyan Faculty

New approaches to college teaching is the subject of a day-long conference Thursday for members of the Nebraska Wesleyan University teaching faculty which precedes the opening of the 1972-73 term.

Dr. Howard Y. Williams, professor of secondary and higher education and chairman of secondary education at the University of Minnesota, will keynote the sessions with a 9 a.m. address. All sessions will be held in the Olin Hall of Science.

Dr. Williams is co-author of "College Faculty View Themselves and Their Jobs", serves as a consultant with liberal arts institutions, and is president of the Minnesota Association of Higher Education.

Prof. Robert Fuller, University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and Prof. George Stephens, Doane College, will participate in a panel discussion on the "Implications of New Approaches" in an afternoon session at 1:15. Also on the panel are Dr. Philip Kaye, head of the NWU speech department, and Sue Andersen, Omaha senior, NWU education major.

During both the morning and afternoon, NWU professors will lead sessions on various approaches to college teaching including interdisciplinary teaching, contracting, auto-tutorial, small groups, inquiry teaching and instructional film-making.

NWU President Vance Rogers will speak at a faculty dinner set for 6:30 p.m. Saturday in the Omaha Room of the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education.

$100 Bill Is Largest

The $100 bill is the largest denomination of U.S. currency now being issued because of the sharp decline in use of currency in denominations of $500, $1,000 $5,000 and $10,000.

Going to move? Then notify the Circulation Dept. so you won't miss your paper. Be sure to give both old and new address.

Banking Dept. Slates Hearing

The State Banking Department has scheduled a hearing for Oct. 17 on an application by Union Savings and Loan Association of Lincoln to establish a branch office in Beatrice.

The hearing will be held at 9:30 a.m. in the department's headquarters in Lincoln.

Board To Meet

The State Board of Technical Community Colleges has scheduled a meeting next Wednesday, Aug. 30, it was announced Tuesday.

The meeting will be held in the board room of the Lincoln Public Schools Administration Building.

CENTENNIAL

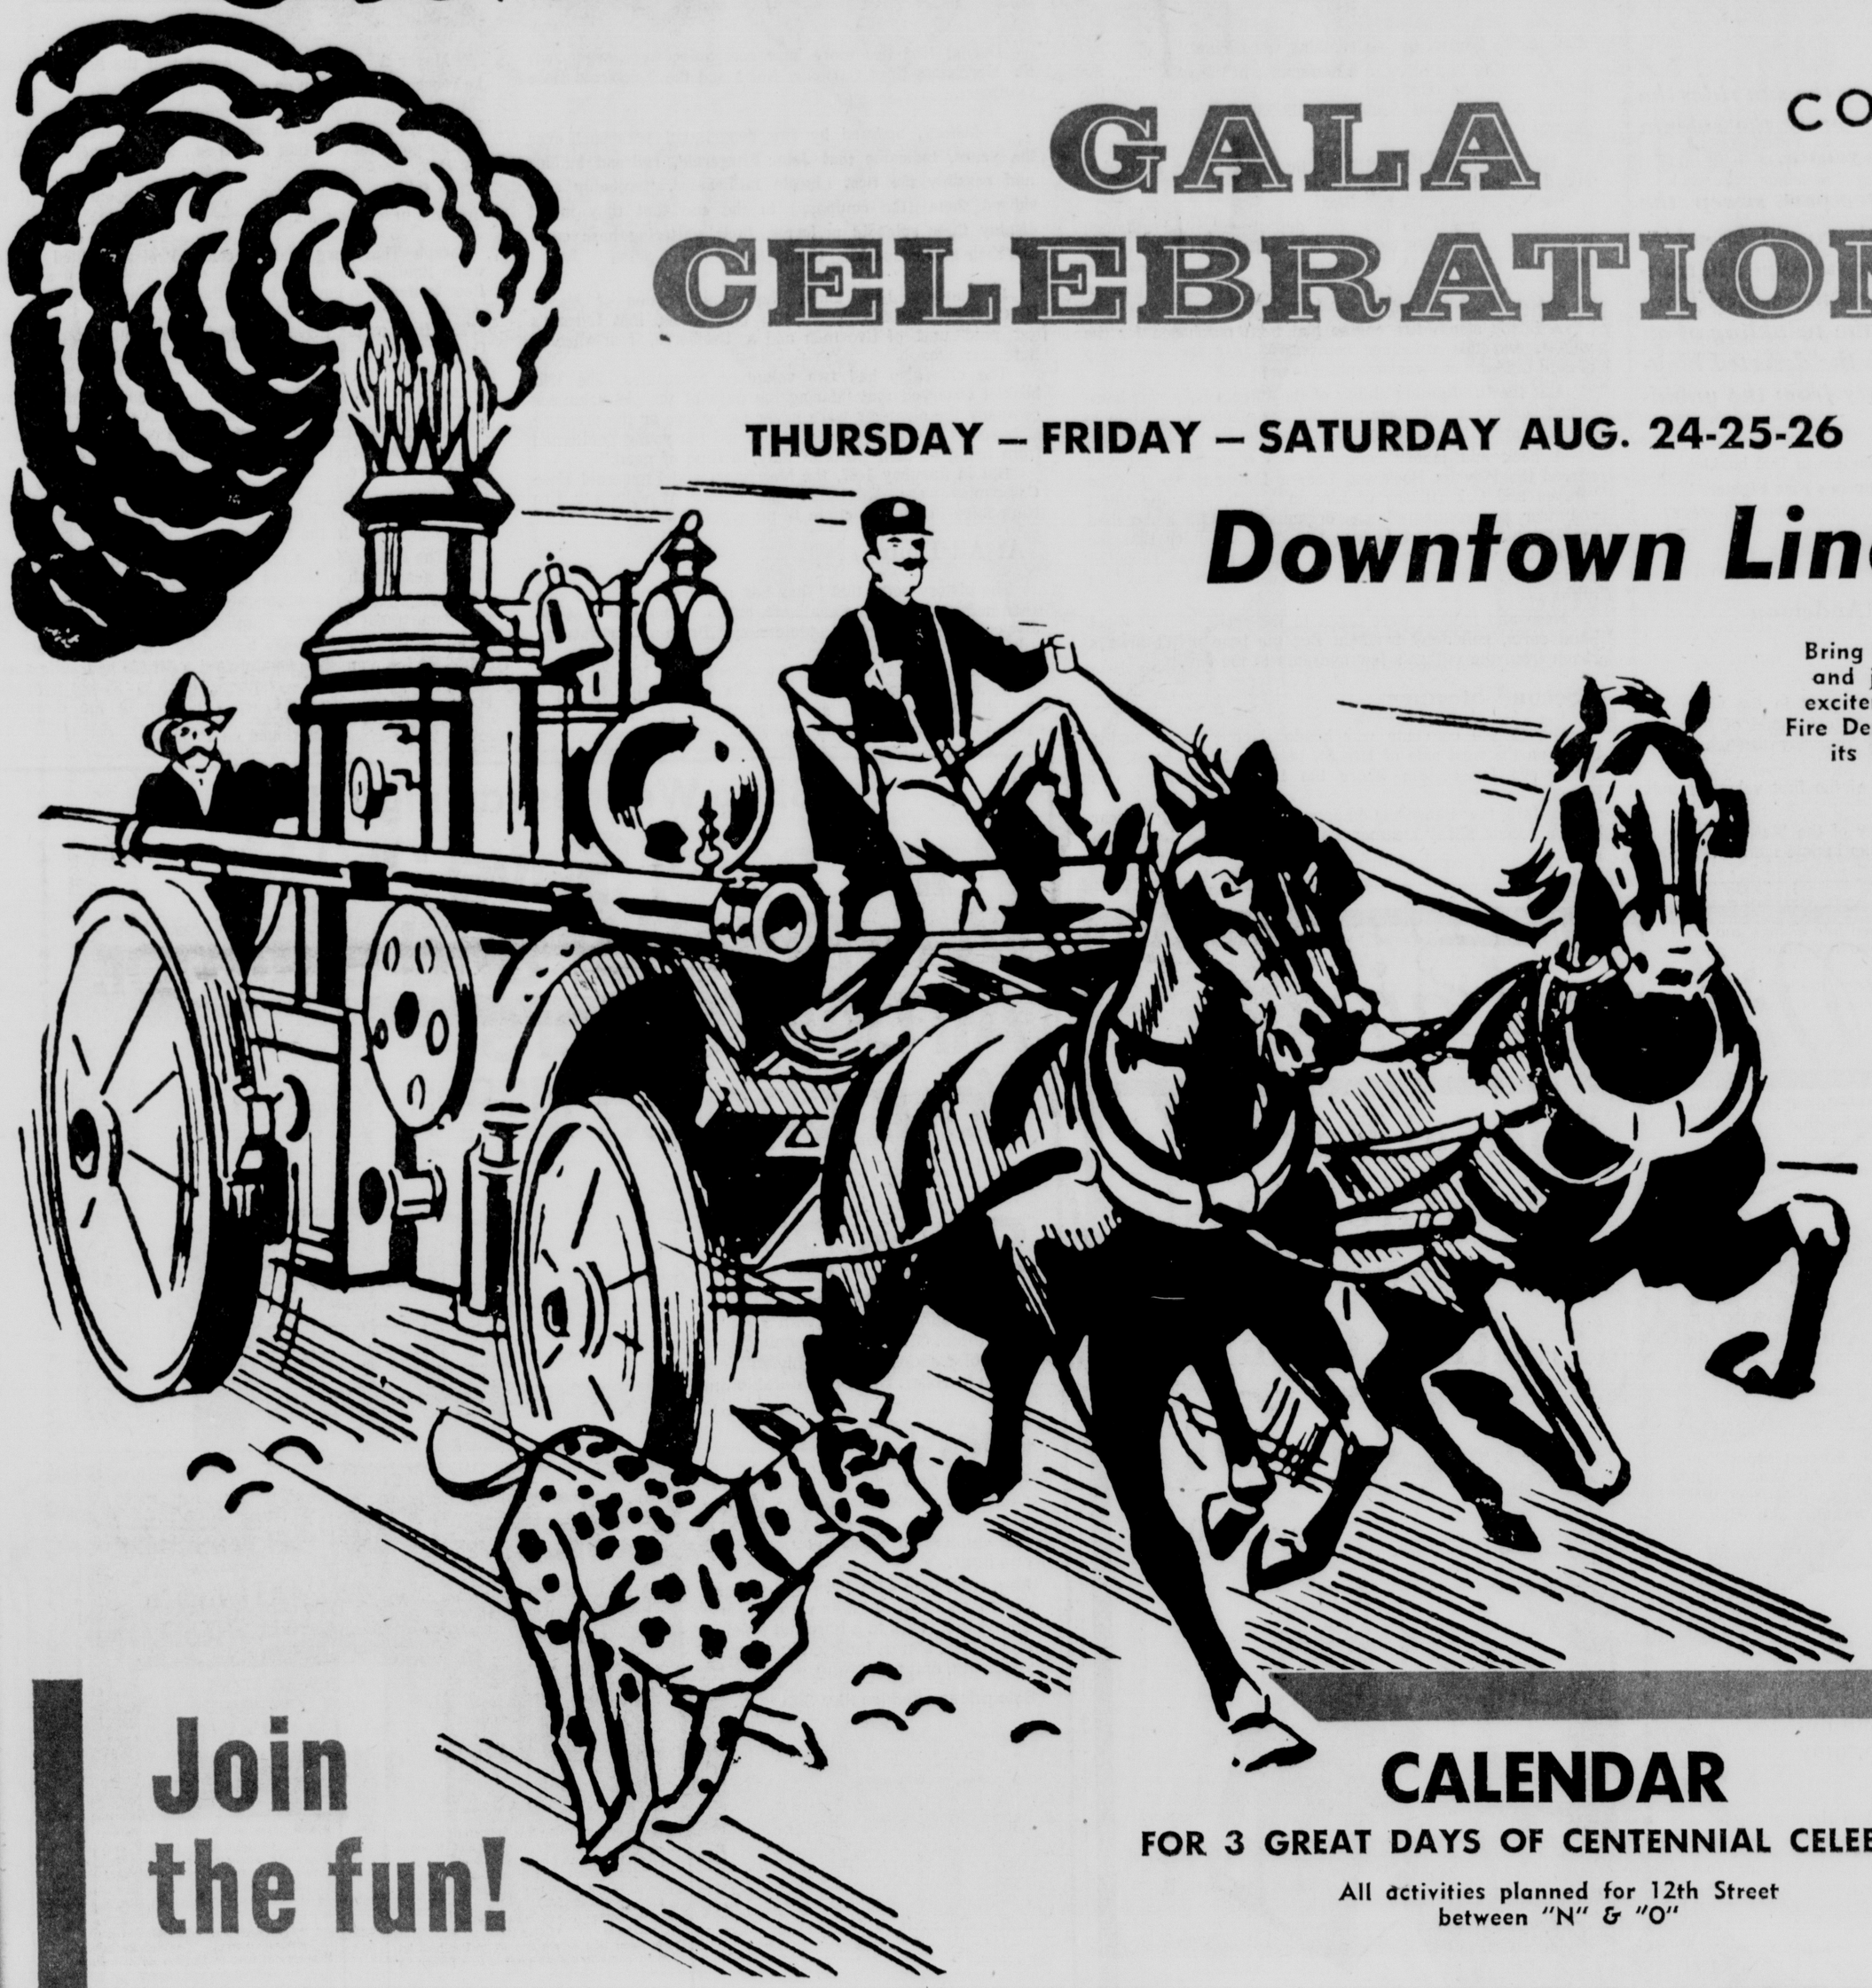
COLOR

THURSDAY – FRIDAY – SATURDAY AUG. 24-25-26

Downtown Lincoln

Bring the whole family and join the fun and excitement as Lincoln's Fire Department celebrates its 100th birthday!



Join the fun!

Come meet the 1972 Miss Flame!

The finals for the Miss Flame Contest will be held at 3:00 on Friday.

Be there to hear who wins SPARKY, the Firedog!

CALENDAR

FOR 3 GREAT DAYS OF CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION!!

AUGUST 24, THURSDAY

1pm-9pm Display of Antique Fire Apparatus

5pm-9pm FIREMEN'S TOURNAMENT

Hilarious, exciting contests between teams of firemen from Lincoln and surrounding counties. They will race up and down ladders pointed straight up in the air, they'll test their skills with fire hoses, and they'll battle it out in a huge water fight.

9pm-12 midnight (approximately) STREET DANCE

Come enjoy yourself at a lively Street Dance! Everyone's invited, bring your family and friends! There will be a band at each end of the block on 12th Street between "N" and "O" — one band will be a contemporary rock band and the other will be for the "over 30" crowd.

AUGUST 25, FRIDAY

1pm-5:30pm Display of Antique Fire Apparatus

1pm-3pm Lincoln Fire Department Demonstration

3pm MISS FLAME CONTEST FINALS

Finalists from the ages of 6-12 will be judged on their ability to answer a few questions about fire safety and the fire department.

AUGUST 26, SATURDAY

10am PARADE IN DOWNTOWN LINCOLN

High school bands, the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, Shriners, and fire fighting equipment from the very oldest to the newest will participate in this great parade—even the Mayor will be here!

11 am A FREE MOVIE

Directly following the parade, a great fun movie will be shown in the new Varsity Theater. Everyone is invited! At the movie, the child winning SPARKY THE FIRE DOG, will be announced!

The Centennial Celebration is Co-Sponsored by the Downtown Lincoln Promotion Council.

The Spark That Kindled A Centennial

The First Lincoln Fire Unit Filled A Void

"Always on duty, when the sun rides the cerulean sky at midday or at the solemn hour when churchyards yawn.

"When rain and tempest sweep the streets and wierdly shriek around the gables beneath which citizens are wrapped in tranquil slumber, the firemen are called from beds hurriedly and in the twinkling of an eye are dashing through the deserted highways to save our property from the unbidden destroyer."

—Introduction to 1902 booklet
"Lincoln's Fire Fighters"

Stories By Tim Anderson

A spark. One too many.

It kindled a frontier fire department in the village of Lincoln. Today, a century later, the centennial of the Lincoln Fire Dept. will be observed Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 24-26.

What prompted the formation of the first volunteer unit in 1872?

Fire destroyed the second floor of the State Asylum on April 16, 1871. It was thought that an inmate named Hammel died in the flames, but no remains were found.

According to a story in a newspaper of the day, ". . . the next morning he (Hammel) came into town, called upon the acting governor and demanded $12,000 damages for being burned out."

Reaction to the fire cried out that Lincoln was in need of added fire protection.

So Lincoln got its first fire department. And although the actual date of its creation is disputed, the Plattsmouth Herald on February 15, 1872, carried this item: "a fire company has been organized in Lincoln and is called the William F. Chapin No. 1." (Chapin was Lincoln's first mayor.

A Silsby steam fire engine had been purchased for the village, and this volunteer company—under the leadership of Seth Linderman—was organized to man it.

But the fire-fighting ability of the Chapin boys was hampered because a volunteer unit did not always have time to build up steam pressure before a blaze did its worst damage.

A hook and ladder company was organized next and named the Phoenix Hook and Ladder Company No. 1. (The "Hayes and Cox History of Lincoln," 1889, says the "first volunteer fire company" was organized in 1875 and called the Phoenix Hook and Ladder Co. It states later that the Chapin Co. was organized in 1872. This error was repeated in Sawyer's "History of Lincoln and Lancaster County" in 1916.)

Hose and ladders were taken to the scene on two-wheel hand carts, pulled by firemen. But the hose didn't always reach from the village's few hydrants to the fire.

Second Steamer

The Chapin company was headquartered at an engine house on the west side of 11th St. between N and M St. It's not known for certain where the Phoenix company was housed.

In 1879 the Phoenix Company disbanded, and a year later a second Silsby steamer was purchased for the Chapin unit.

During 1882 two more hose companies were organized: the Merchants Hose Company No. 1 and the Fitzgerald Hose Company.

A history, updated by fire department personnel over the years, indicates that John Fitzgerald, railroad builder and possibly the first Lincoln millionaire, "probably subsidized them (the company) to the end that they might display their splendid uniforms, their glittering hose carts and their golden speaking trumpets."

In January 1886, under the administration of Mayor H. C. Burr, the department was reorganized into Lincoln's first paid unit of five men and a two-horse, four-wheeled hose carriage.

The city also had two volunteer companies. The 1902 booklet observed that "during the days of the old volunteer company the elements were never too severe or the pressure of business never too strong to prevent the young gentlemen from being at their posts of duty in time of need."

But in January 1887, the Merchants and Fitzgerald Hose Companies were disbanded. The career of volunteer fire companies in Lincoln came to an end.

At All Hours

The history notes that "they had rendered valiant service when nothing better was available, but the rapid growth of the city called for full time, professional firemen, on duty at all hours."

The first paid fire company was located at Engine House No. 2, at the corner of 10th and Q St., site of the old municipal building and fire station headquarters ahead of its move to 18th and Q in March, 1967.

Mayor A. J. Sawyer then asked that the fire department be reorganized and put on a solid financial basis.

W. H. Newbury was first full-time chief of the Lincoln Fire Dept., consisting of three paid companies, located at the headquarters at 10th and Q St., and House No. 1 at 225 So. 11th.

The fire department was only four years old when it was involved in tragedy, and two men became heroes.

Joseph Thornburg and Clarence Protsman died in 1890 while fighting a barn fire. They were inside when an upper floor loaded with burning hay collapsed about them.

The first motor driven equipment was purchased in 1910. One of the earliest rigs used in Lincoln was a 1911 American LaFrance hose and chemical wagon.

An innovation at that time, the chemical wagon was designed to help pump water more effectively with less effort. Firemen turned handles which upset a container of chemical in the water-carrying body of the wagon. These reacted to build-up pressure.

Firemen in the early 1900s were actual "smoke-eaters." since the only masks for fires was a wet handkerchief or a wet sponge held in the teeth.

In 1919, under the leadership of Chief Neil T. Sommer, the department became completely mechanized, when the last horses were sold.

In 1962 the department purchased a $39,000 hydraulic aerial truck — the "snorkel" — equipped with an 85-foot hydraulic boom platform. The unit, used mainly in the downtown

The Lincoln Fire Dept. has grown as the city expanded. Today, under the supervision of Chief Dallas Johnson, the department operates on close to a $2.3 million budget, employing 229 men, operating four ladder and 12 engine companies. A total of $2.4 million was requested for the 1972-73 fiscal year.

There are eight fire stations, with a ninth under construction at 2nd and N St. to serve west Lincoln.

Today's Companies

The headquarters, located at Station No. 1, 1801 Q St., is home to three engine companies and two ladder companies, with 20 firemen on duty per 24-hour shift. No. 1 also has a district chief and a driver, and houses a back-up aerial ladder truck, all the Civil Defense scuba gear and boat, plus a high expansion foam apparatus.

Station No. 5 at 3640 Touzalin has two engine companies and one ladder company, with 12 men on duty per shift. It also houses a reserve engine company and a water tanker.

No. 7 at 1345 So. Cotner, is headquarters for one engine company and a ladder company, with eight men per staff. No. 7 is equipped with a spare compressor unit.

Four men handle the engine company that runs out of Station No. 8 at 2760 So. 17th. They too have a reserve engine company.

Station No. 11 at Building 1038, Lincoln Air Park West, has two engine companies, with eight men per shift, plus special crash equipment for use at the airport.

Johnson said that although Lincoln was once served by eleven stations, due to "more strategic location," there is now need for only eight. Stations 2 and 3 have been abandoned.

The new station at 2nd and N, being built for about $105,000, the department's 1972 budget, will be named No. 4.

Divisions of the department focus on communication, fire suppression, special service, inspection and training.

Johnson, who receives an annual salary of $18,532, estimates that the fire rigs owned today by the department would require more than $860,000 to replace.

In next year's budget, he is asking for $79,000 to cover the cost of a 100-foot aerial ladder truck. This, Johnson says, will equip the stations with some of the most modern fire-fighting equipment available.

A Silsby steam fire engine had been purchased for the village of Lincoln, and a volunteer company was organized to man it.

An Exciting Job

"It's terrific . . . you really get a lot of satisfaction and a sense of accomplishment from saving a house that's on fire, or more important, maybe someone's life."

That's why Chuck Province, 29 year old, married and the father of one son, is a fireman.

"It's not like it's portrayed in the movies, where the hero runs into a burning building full of smoke and rescues the beautiful girl," notes Chuck Province, who's been a Lincoln Fireman for about a month.

"Some houses are completely enveloped in fire, and we'll have to crawl in on our hands and knees. It's a dirty, stinking job, and times like that usually aren't much fun."

But if you'd like an exciting job that can merit you respect, one in which you're almost daily asked to save property and lives—

Does his wife worry? "You bet," he says.

"She worries when she hears the sirens. For all she knows, once I get inside some building the roof could fall in. It could be full of gas and about ready to explode, or the smoke could get me. She has a right to be worried."

Being a fireman isn't all fighting fires and rescuing people. Province has the fire house duties of keeping up the kitchen. Other time is spent working on his "rig" (truck) and studying the fire manual for periodic exams given by the department.

The young "smoke-eater," a term that literally applied to early firemen, says the exams are rough and "probably get rougher as you go along.

"The longer you've been here, the more they expect you to know."

Another rough part of being a fireman is the initial training, especially the physical testing. "Boy, it's tough, and when you get through running the training course . . . well, you're really pooped out," he noted.

Lincoln firemen may be asked to aid in pumping water out of basements, get a cat down from a tree, or help people get into their locked home. Many do volunteer work on their own time.

Rookie firemen like Province are paid in excess of $600 a month for an average 60-hour week over an annual basis. Fire fighters have a five-step salary range based on merit, which can amount to as high as $730.

In comparison, when the present chief, Dallas Johnson, started in 1947 as a fire fighter, rookies made $105 monthly for an average 84-hour week.

Today's firemen can also take an early retirement at age 55, receiving half pay.

Rookies dress in gray fire department T-shirts and jeans for the first six months of their employment, then they're given $75 by the department to be applied toward a dress uniform.

Later they're given a $9-a-month clothing allowance. The fire fighter must buy all his own boots and coats and all other personal gear, excluding the helmet and breathing apparatus, which are supplied.

These professionals, men who work 24-hour shifts, who get no specified holidays, who are always on call for second alarm and larger fires, are a special breed.

"I know that if I were in any trouble inside a burning building, they would all do whatever possible to help me. I know they would."

Chiefs Fight Fire Fiend Daily

"when we got there, the fire was going like the devil. We put our ladder up on the north side to one of the upper windows.

"We got the pumper on the line and were starting to build a lot of back pressure when something happened — we never did find out what exactly — and the water just came blasting out of that hose.

"I was on the top of the ladder holding the hose, and when that water came out, my ladder left the wall. I felt the ladder going backwards and the next thing I knew, I was on my back."

F. W. Donnelly, Lincoln fire chief from 1937 to 1942, sighed as he recalled an early 1900 fire at the West Glass and Paint Co. at 12th and M St.

Memories like this flood the reverie of Donnelly, now 81, who was a Lincoln fireman for 30 years.

Everyday dangers are part of the profession. Donnelly says he never really saved anybody's life. "I've assisted some firemen, but then I've been dragged out of a lot of places myself."

Since the first volunteer fire company was formed in 1872, Lincoln has been served by a procession of "on the line" chiefs.

When the first company — W. F. Chapin Volunteer Company No. 1 — was organized, it had as a leader ex-Civil War soldier Seth Linderman, who, one Lincoln history notes vaguely had "served with Gen. U.S. Grant."

Little is recorded about early village fire chiefs like G. B. Skinner, T. P. Quick, N. C. Abbott, Gran Ensign, I. L. Lyman and Isaac Raymond.

'The Fire Fiend'

But a 1902 publication titled "Lincoln's Fire Fighters" says of chief Raymond: "from the moment of his election, it was his predominating thought and constant care so far as the department was concerned, to instill courage, valor and to arouse deep interest in the heart and minds of every member of the company . . ."

The booklet's author adds, with a touch of drama, that "it was due largely in part to Mr. Raymond's watchfulness and thoughtfulness that during his reign as chief the citizens of Lincoln nightly wrapped the drapery of their couches about them and lay down to peaceful slumbers knowing full well that the fire fiend was more at the mercy of their watchful chief and the gallant boys of Chapin No. 1 than they at the mercy of the fiend."

The first paid company was organized in 1886 with W. H. Newbury as its warden, or chief. Newbury's company consisted of two horses, a four-wheeled carriage and five men stationed at 10th and Q.

Robert Malone's service as chief began in 1895. He was followed by Charles Wiedman in 1897, a man who came under heavy fire from the public after two major blazes in the city. After mounting criticism created dissatisfaction, the city council decided to replace him.

Near the end of 1899 Mayor H. J. Winnett chose as his replacement, to the displeasure of many Lincolnites, Horace T. Clement, an experienced Omaha fire captain.

But an article of that time said of Clement: "So well does he control the fiery elements, with the aid of his brave and gallant boys, that on the occasion of a recent fire when the flames were subdued almost at the outset, a citizen was heard to remark on the streets that we had better discharge our chief and hire another,

Donnelly and Chief Hansen were said to be better leaders than 'any two men who ever pulled boots on.'

as Mr. Clement would not allow anything to burn so we might have a little excitement occasionally."

Short, Tragic Career

When Clement retired after 17 years as chief, he was succeeded by Neil T. Sommer, whose career was to be short and tragic.

Chief Sommer was killed three years later when his chief's car collided with a fire engine at 11th and O St., enroute to a fire.

Olaf Olson, appointed chief in 1920, was followed by John Steele in 1922, then by Louis Hansen four months later. Hansen served Lincoln through some of its worst fires.

It was said that Hansen had many close fire calls. During one such incident he was inside a burning building searching for the source of the fire. His assistant chief, F. W. Donnelly, heard a hissing noise, and got Hansen out just before a barrel of alcohol exploded.

Donnelly, who succeeded Hansen as chief in 1937, retired in 1942. He still recalls his first fire. "It was the first night I worked. I couldn't sleep, just knowing that something was going to happen," he said.

The fire was at a building at 10th and N Sts., where the Brandeis parking garage now stands. The alarm came early in the morning.

"In those days you were just supposed to know what to do — nobody told you what to do, or how to do it," Donelly said. "I was on the back end of the pumper and it was my job to hook up the hose. When we got there we couldn't see the building for smoke.

"We pulled up next to the hydrant and my captain yelled, 'There's your plug.'

"Now I'd seen one before, but I'd never really gotten down and investigated one. I grabbed the hose and jumped down and did what I could.

"But they were hollering for water a long time before I ever got it there," Donnelly recalled.

Veteran firemen say that no department had a pair of leaders like Hansen and Donnelly, when they were together. They were said to be "better than any two men who ever pulled boots on."

After Donnelly retired, chief Elijah Paul Feaster, inaugerated in 1956 a home inspection program, in addition to regular inspection of businesses and schools.

Roscoe Benton served as chief until 1966, when Dallas Johnson became the fire department head.

No Firemen?

No need for a fire department? Will that era ever come? Can sprinkler systems and robot-like automatic fire fighting equipment ever do a full job of protecting life and property?

Lincoln Fire Chief Dallas Johnson says he'd like to have that happen, "as would any fire chief," but doubts that he will see the day.

Johnson said statistics show that "today we are doing a better job, employing better men and using better equipment than ever before."

He noted that "we owe a lot to the residents of Lincoln, the ones that are footing the bill . . . I feel they're getting their full dollar value too.

"I think it says a lot for our men and equipment, when you look at the way Lincoln has grown in the last 10 to 15 years, and then find that we have about the same number of fire stations we had then."

Today's stations are more strategically located and are equipped for more extensive fire fighting.

Johnson said he believes one of the great innovations in fire fighting is the air mask, which permits the fireman 30 minutes of safe breathing inside a building.

"These masks have helped substantially in reducing the loss of firemen's lives.

"Some old-timers might take issue with this," he added, "but I think that we're fighting a lot of fires from inside the buildings, that would have been fought from the street years ago — due primarily to these masks."

Typical Station

A Mile Of Hose

The fire hose on trucks at Lincoln's Station No. 5, a typical fire house at 3642 Touzalin, would stretch more than a mile, if laid end to end. Three "first line" fire trucks, a tanker used mainly for grass fires, and a reserve truck are the company's motor armada.

The 36 firemen who work out of Station 5 have been trained to use most of the other 300 pieces of equipment on hand, notes Capt. Bill Gabelhouse. And every piece has been used at one time or another.

But did you know that a typical station has these items? Power rescue saw, electric generator, rescue jack, water vacuum cleaner, brick pick, foam generator and sprinkler shut-off device.

Why train a man to handle all equipment?

Fighting fires is often dangerous work. "We try to train every man so he can take the place of any other man," Gabelhouse explained, "so if one is injured, others can do his job."

Fire Horses Inspired Cigar

Memorials are built and statues are erected to honor persons for their contributions to society or humanity, but there is at least one case in Lincoln where two fire horses were given a unique honor.

Some unknown admirer who happened to be in the cigar business, named one of his cigars after Carl and Todd, probably the two most famous fire horses in the city's history.

Firemen cannot remember what Lincoln manufacturer made the cigars, but they recall that they were good smoking, a fitting tribute to a pair of "real smoke eaters."

Carl and Todd, who were retired after 14 years of active service on May 18, 1909, were a team of big gray fire horses which, as Dick Cocklin wrote in the Missouri Valley Fire Chiefs Journal, "had shared thrills and danger with their human companions."

Those old firemen who can remember the famous team seem to agree that the two were quite different in temperament. Carl was said to be big and rawboned, nervous and high strung. His mate was quiet and steady as a rock.

Together, they were known to be as fast a team as ever pulled a fire rig over Lincoln streets.

Carl and Todd gained national prominence to boot. J. W. Turner, who retired from the department in 1901, was a membeer of a drill team selected to represent Lincoln at the Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition in Omaha in 1898.

Carl and Todd were selected to pull the rig used by the local team. And pull it they did.

The Lincoln team — Chief Charles Wiedman, Bill Stanz, Charley DeVoll, J. W. Turner, Bob Jarvers, Jim Dawson and Nick Heiser—finished second to Kansas City in competition.

The four-legged fire fighters had the distinction of joining the department on the same day and retiring on the same day.

They were purchased as a team from Jacob Rocke of Atkinson on June 1, 1895, for $12.50 each. They were sold back to Rocke at retirement for $50 each, with the stipulation they were to be kept by him the rest of their lives.

Carl enjoyed running, and this may well be the reason he was involved in so many collisions with other vehicles.

Assistant Chief Bill Eddy was driving Chief Horace Clements to a fire on So. 10th, between M and N Streets, when the buggy struck the rear of a parked wagon.

The impact nearly destroyed the chief's buggy, but failed to even slow old Carl, who apparently felt he had a duty to do.

He broke loose from the shafts and continued down the street, pulling Eddy over the dashboard and to the street before he could let go.

Todd, however, was known as a department standby. Oldtimers say he could be counted on to be where he was needed, when he was needed. He was reportedly sure-footed and was never known to fall, no matter how slippery or rough the going might be.

Perhaps the only vice the team had was their tobacco habit. Carl and Todd were confirmed tobacco chewers, as were many of their co-workers, human and animal.

Whenever a fireman or a visitor approached the two, they would beg for a nibble of "cut plug." Apparently they had no preference, for they were known to chew almost any brand.

7,569 Hours

During 1971 more than 7,569 hours were devoted to training and drill involving fire prevention and fire fighting by members of the Lincoln Fire Dept.

The department responded to 1,090 fires, nearly three a day.

The Lincoln fire prevention bureau made 4,505 inspections of Lincoln businesses and checked 4,243 other locations.

A fire not visible from the outside poses a special difficulty for firemen.

'We've Got a Flame!'

ALARM!

All the calm, collected men who were mopping floors, eating lunch or shining trucks became a well-oiled machine.

In a few seconds, truck engines roaring and sirens screaming, the Lincoln Fire Dept. unit, housed at 18th and Q St., headed for Cushman Motor Works at 21st and W St.

The trucks surged down 18th St. to R, then jogging to 19th, Motorists screeched to a halt as the firemen disregarded stop signs and stop lights. Down Vine to 21st, then on to W.

As the Cushman building came into view, all truck radios reported "10-19" — observe nothing. But firemen don't rely on a first glance.

All 20 of these men have fire duties, and when the trucks halted they were already doing them.

Still no smoke.

While one fireman began to hook up a 1¼-inch hose, another ran out of the building. "We'll need more hose than that — we've got a flame," he shouted.

With that call, the pace increased. The men looked like a mob of hungry ants scurrying about.

As the pumper began gushing water into the building, firemen had already set up ladders around its perimeter and were ventilating the structure to rid it of heat and smoke.

The fire was soon under control, but men stayed behind to make certain it was actually out.

Men with sooty faces headed back to the sattion, hardly 20 minutes after the first notice of fire was reported.

'911' Dispatcher

The 911 emergency system, manned by the Lincoln Fire Dept., fielded 57,424 calls during 1971, of which 4% resulted in fire runs.

About That Airplane

Touching a multitude of sports bases while hoping the rumors aren't true that the plane the Big Eight Conference has acquired for this year's Skywriters Tour is a duplicate of the one and from the same charter company that crashed in the Colorado mountains a couple of years ago with the Wichita State football team and if it is true wondering how long the line will be at the insurance counter at the Norman, Okla., International Airport on Saturday morning as we prepare to fly into the Colorado mountains:

A number of events seem to be showing up on today's sports pages that we hardly think should be there, such as chess. But the final straw comes in the form of a news release addressed to yours truly — the subject? A national ballroom dancing championship to be held Sept. 9-10 at the American Hotel in New York City. That's just a week ahead of our stay in that hotel for the Nebraska-Army football game.

Dr. Max Novich, director of a Boxing School for Overprivileged Boys in South Orange, N.J., says the only thing to give a boy whose parents have the money to give him anything he wants is a "good cuffing around the head and some telling blows to the mid-section."

The story of Dr. Novich's school is told in the current issue of Sport Magazine.

The Lincoln Swim Club was a big winner from the National AAU Diving Championships held recently at Woods Pool. The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce reports that the chamber received $600 and the Lincoln Swim Club $2,000 from the event.

Wives, Girl Friends Beware

And Dr. Jeffrey R. Goldstein, who recently conducted a study of such matters, says it could also happen after he watches a hockey match, a basketball game or any other sport where contact is involved.

Contrary to popular opinion, watching such contests does not allow the spectator to release his emotions. Rather, he claims, it tends to let one's emotions build up.

All sports have their own special language and the PGA Golf Tour is no exception. Some of the terms you might hear if you're in the gallery at one of the tour events:

Oscar Brown — an out of bounds shot.
The short grass — the fairway.
Brillo or cabbage — the rough.
I H20'd it — hit it in the water.
The cat box or kitty litter — a sand trap.
Throw-up zone — the area within five feet of the pin.

Omahans Leon Diggs and George Hannah have purchased part interest in the traveling basketball show, the Harlem Thrillers, and are seeking bookings in the area beginning Sept. 28.

Who ever fell in love with a girl just because she could run 100 yards faster than another girl?

UCLA's Harmon Feels 'Bull's Eye' Pressure

Los Angeles (AP) — Quarterbacks are targets and Mark Harmon of UCLA has been a bull's eye much of his life, but he's not about to change his name to Smith or Jones.

"I've taken a fair share of abuse," says Mark, 19-yer-old son of Michigan's famous No. 98, Tom Harmon, "but that comes hand and hand until you prove yourself."

What sort of abuse?

"The defensive players hit you late, give you something extra, and say, 'That's for your blankety-blank television commercial.

"In pre-game warmups, the other team would chant, 'Hey-hey! Kill Harmon!' I wondered, 'What am I doing out here?' "

Mark adds, "I'm very proud to be Tom Harmon's son. I really don't feel any pressure. I just love to play football.

"I don't try to compare myself with my dad and my teammates make me feel comfortable."

Harmon transferred to UCLA from Pierce Junior College in nearby Woodland Hills, where he developed enough football skill to be sought by numerous universities including Michigan where Tom Harmon won the 1940 Heisman Trophy.

"Harmon's the No. 1 quarterback," says UCLA coach Pepper Rodgers. "He earned the job based on his performance in spring practice. He's a fine leader."

Harmon, who is 6-0, 185 pounds, both ran and passed well at Pierce and his running as well as his passing should be evident as director of the Bruins' Wishbone-T offense.

"Yes, there's some resemblance in the way he runs," says Tom Harmon of Mark.

"The Wishbone-T is right down his line. He's a good runner and fine ball handler, and he's been working to strengthen his arm."

The father says he's limited his advice along the way to "concentration and effort. I told him that if he would push himself a little bit more, it will pay off."

Mark's decision to attend UCLA was his own, says Tom, but it does put dad in "a touchy situation."

The elder Harmon is the play-by-play television announcer for UCLA's games.

"I'll be unbiased," Tom says. "I'm not concerned with that.

The Harmons "discuss various things about football" says Mark, "but the game has changed a lot.

"I kid Dad about that. I tell him all they did in his day was throw crossbody blocks and tackle with their hands.

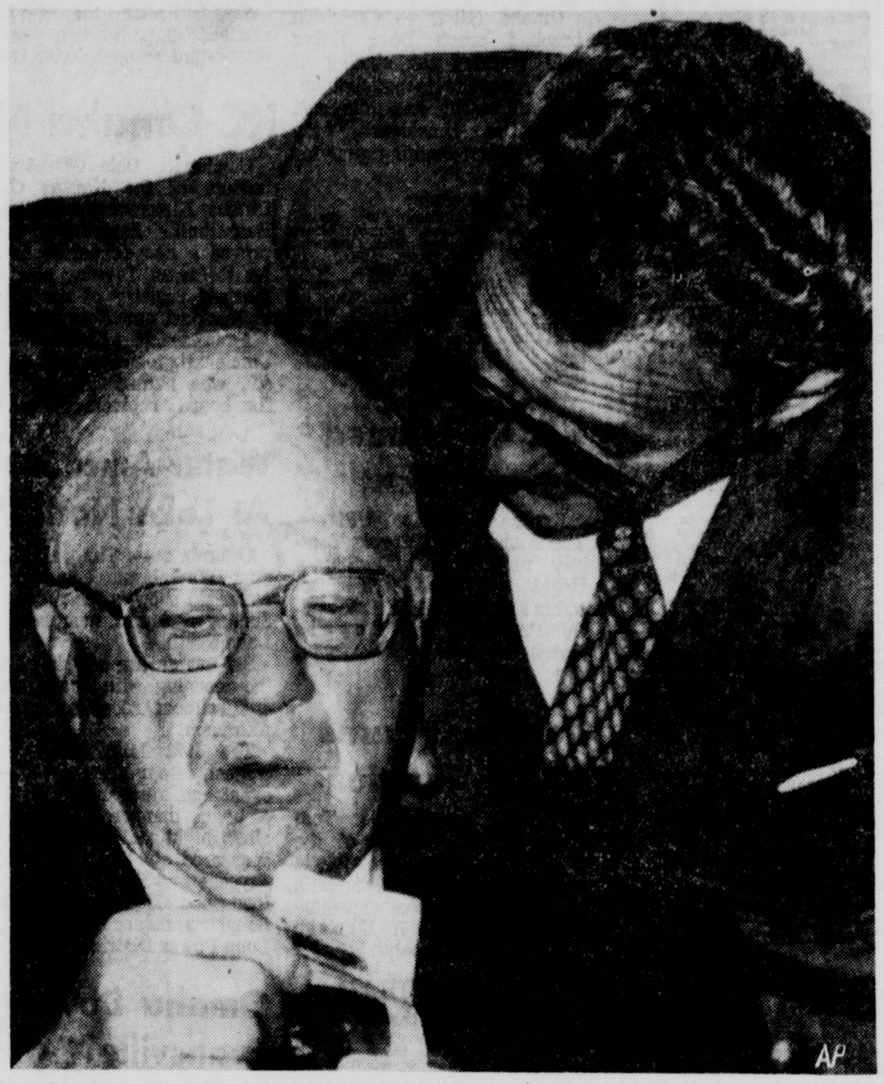
"He was 6-2, 198 pounds, which in those days was awesome for a runner.

"That's big but it wouldn't stand out today. You really can't compare today with his day."

RHODESIAN TEAM OUSTED

Wholesale Walkout By Blacks Stopped

. . . IOC'S BRUNDAGE LOSES BATTLE



DECISION . . . Rhodesia's Ruegsegger looks over Brundage's shoulder at vote results.

MUNICH (AP) — The International Olympic Committee sacrificed little Rhodesia—and some of its principles—Tuesday in a move to prevent the wholesale walkout of African nations and sympathetic blacks, including some Americans, from the Munich Games.

A somber Avery Brundage, losing his final battle as president of the self-perpetuating body, announced after a day of wrangling that the IOC by a vote of 36-31 had decided to withdraw the invitation to the former British colony.

The crusty, 84-year-old Brundage last week had stormed: "The African demand is political blackmail—we will not allow Olympic principles to be destroyed."

Asked after the IOC vote if he felt that political pressures on the Olympics had become intolerable, Brundage snapped: "I agree."

The decision was greeted with a mixture of disappointment, disillusionment and delight, depending on the viewpoint.

Some Rhodesians cried. Bruce Kennedy, a Rhodesian javelin thrower, had tears in his eyes when he said, "I can't say I didn't expect this. It is a disturbing situation."

One of the eight black members of the 43-man Rhodesian team, sprinter Artwell Mandaza, said wistfully that he felt he might have won a gold medal. "But it is quite fair for the black nations who know what they are fighting for."

At the Rhodesian quarters in section 10 of Olympic Village, where team members were packing for the trip home, a secretary spoke for Ossie Plaskitt, the chief of the mission.

"Mr. Plaskitt said we are out of the Olympic Games," the secretary said. "So there is nothing else to say."

There was rejoicing in the camps of the various African countries, principally Kenya and Ethiopia, producers of long distance running champions, among black supporters.

"It is up to you athletes to prove what we have been saying in conferences," Jean Claude Ganga, secretary-general of the supreme council for sports in Africa, said as he hugged a Kenyan athlete. "This is a just decision."

The Rhodesian team, consisting of 35 white athletes and eight blacks, was thrown out on the technicality that it was unable to produce passports showing British citizenship.

The Rhodesians entered West Germany with identity tags which read "South Rhodesia—British subjects" and with the promise to use the British flag and British anthem, "God Save The Queen."

These were specifications agreed upon by the African nations when the IOC approved Rhodesian participation a year ago. The IOC was caught off-guard when 12 nations in the African block plus Guyana threatened the week before the Games to pull out if Rhodesia competed.

The threat escalated when a group of U.S. black athletes issued a statement last Friday asserting: "We will stand united behind our black brothers." Cuba and Haiti joined the parade early Tuesday while the problem was still being debated.

Willy Brandt, chancellor of West Germany, urged IOC solution of the matter so as not to affect West Germany's relations with African countries, and the United Nations called attention to sanctions against the white-controlled former British colony which gained its independence in 1965.

With such pressure, the IOC took what many observers called the practical—if not the most courageous—course despite its constant avowal of its lofty ideals of never permitting political interference.

Now the games may proceed with such sports dignitaries as Kipchoge Keino, Kenya's 1,500 meter defending champion, and Ethiopia's marathon gold medalist Mammo Wolde and ace long distance runner, Miruts Yifter, a standout in the 5,000 and 10,000 meters.

The Kenyan and Ethiopian teams, boasting some of the world's leading distance runners, were among those slated to stage the boycott. Ethiopia kept cancelling plane reservations at home while awaiting the outcome.

Also there is no telling how many U.S. black athletes might have joined the walkout. The reports varied but sources said the bulk of American black track and field men had given promise that they would not compete if Rhodesia was certified.

Vince Matthews, American 400-meter star from New York said upon hearing the IOC decision: "wow, that's good news. I'm glad it's over.

The IOC was forced to back down similarly before the 1968 games at Mexico City. Having approved apartheid South Africa, the Olympic body yielded to pressures from the Soviet Union, its Communist satellites and African nations and reversed its decision. South Africa is still barred.

Wishbone Offense Biggest NU Threat?

. . . USED BY 5 HUSKERS FOES

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Nebraska's defensive platoon should be better prepared to stop the wishbone offense this season, according to head coach Bob Devaney.

NU's two top defensive crews continued work against the formation which five teams, including UCLA which opens the NU season, are expected to utilize against the Huskers. Other teams include Texas A&M and Big Eight foes Missouri, Oklahoma and Oklahoma State.

"Having our defense experienced against the wishbone should be helpful," the Husker boss admitted. "The only clubs that probably won't use it against us are Kansas State. Iowa State, Kansas and Army.

"But you never know what Army (an NU foe on Sept. 23 at West Point) will use — it's their first game," he said.

Devaney said Wednesday morning's (9 a.m.) first full-scale scrimmage will give the coaching staff a chance to evaluate the team and determine if changes are necessary.

"Each day we add a couple of new plays and check the progress we've been making," he said. "Today (in Tuesday's morning and afternoon drills) we did some one-on-one work and checked techniques."

In praising the three top quarterbacks who will carry NU's fortunes this year, Devaney said he hopes sophomore signal-caller Terry Luck's knee will be fully recovered before the UCLA opener two weeks from Saturday night at Los Angeles.

Luck, who guided last fall's unbeaten freshman team, injured the knee in spring practice and underwent surgery in the off-season.

"Luck shows to some degree a lack of spring practice, his knee still isn't 100 per cent, but we hope he'll be ready to play by the first game," Devaney said. "All three quarterbacks (Luck, David Humm and Steve Runty) have all been doing good these things (new plays) up."

Devaney admitted that left-hander Humm, who was redshirted last fall, has the inside track as heir apparent to Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson's position.

Karl Webb, a transfer track recruit from North Platte Junior College, has been employed as a split receiver on the scout squad and has been impressive with his blazing speed.

"He's got real good speed," said Devaney, "I'm not saying he's going to start the first game or anything, but he might be helpful to our team by the time the season's over with."

With cooler temperatures prevailing Tuesday, the Huskers drilled in pads in the afternoon session. Monday, the heat curtailed padwork to the morning drill.

Battle Between AL Division Leaders Turns Into Brawl

. . . A's BEST TIGERS, 6-3, DESPITE FIGHT

By Associated Press

Tuesday night's battle between the American League's divisional leaders turned out to be exactly that.

The Oakland A's, with a three-run homer by Angel Mangual and solo shots by Joe Rudi and pitcher John "Blue Moon" Odom, beat the Detroit Tigers 6-3 in a baseball game enlivened by a wild seventh-inning brawl.

Mangual tagged Mickey Lolich, 19-10, for his decisive blast in the fifth inning. In his next time at bat, reliever Bill Slayback fired a pitch high and inside, and Mangual responded by tearing out to the mound and trading punches with Slayback as both benches emptied.

As the crowd of 30,490 howled and littered the field with debris, the two teams went at it with at least fiveseparate fights going on at once. Mangual and Slayback were ejected from the game and Oakland Coach Irv Noren was cut above an eye in one scuffle.

The White Sox, rallying from a four-run deficit, charged back on the strength of Dick Allen's 31st homer of the season to beat the New York Yankees while the Orioles, limited to four hits by Nolan Ryan while striking out 11 times, lost 2-0 to the California Angels.

In the rest of the American League, Gaylord Perry and the Cleveland Indians beat Minnesota 3-2, Boston outlasted Kansas City 10-7 and Texas defeated Milwaukee 2-1.

In early National League night games, the New York Mets downed Houston 4-2. Atlanta overhauled Philadelphia 11-7 and Cincinnati topped Montreal 5-3.

Sandy Alomar's triple and Bob Oliver's sacrifice fly in the third inning and successive doubles by Oliver and Ken McMullen carried the Angels past Baltimore.

The Yankees scored two runs in each of the first two innings but Chicago cut the margin to one run with three in the third before Allen hit his fifth-inning homer, his 24th of the year at home, wiping out Bill Melton's year-old White Sox record.

On the West coast Al Downing scattered nine hits for his third shutout and Willie Davis singled home the only run as the Los Angeles Dodgers edged the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0.

Lou Brock of St. Louis stole his 50th base of the season in the sixth inning to tie a major league record set by Ty Cobb of 50 or more steals a year for eight years.

Also Nelson Briles fired a one-hitter and the Pittsburgh Pirates scored an unearned run in the first inning for a 1-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants and Ferguson Jenkins pitched a six-hitter and increased his lifetime record against San Diego to 11-0 as the Chicago Cubs rallied to beat the Padres 4-3.

Kearney State Practices Start

Kearney — Head coach Claire Boroff and his staff greeted 118 football hopefuls at Kearney State Sunday afternoon as the 1972 pre-season practices began.

Boroff, in his first year as head coach of the Antelopes, allowed the players who participated in the 1972 Shrine Bowl game to have several days off and they will not report until Wednesday. The Kearney staff expects five Shrine Bowl players to report to the Antelope camp.

Among those reporting Sunday afternoon were 17 seniors, 19 juniors and 25 sophomores. In addition, seven transfer men are on the squad presently.

Included in those reporting were 40 lettermen. Several lettermen who were expected to be in camp did not return. They include tackle Gerald Strand, end Mike Hart, defensive back Craig Heidecker, and center Ken VerMaas.

UCLA Practices On Pass Routes

Los Angeles (AP) — The UCLA Bruin football team ran pass routes off the wishbone-T formation Tuesday morning, then reset an afternoon workout for the evening because of the heat wave.

Coach Pepper Rodgers' Bruins, who will not work out in pads until Thursday, will give plenty of attention to passing from the basically ground-oriented formation.

"I don't think anybody in the country goes out and strictly runs at Nebraska," said Rodgers, whose Bruins host the Cornhuskers in the season opener Sept. 9.

Mark Harmon quarterbacked the first-string backfield but Rob Scribner was throwing the football better than last spring when he fell behind Harmon in competition for the No. 1 job.

Fairgrounds Racing Ends Wednesday

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Funny Nickel tops a field of 2-year-olds for the running of the $3,500-added Freshman Stakes as Fairground racing enters its last day Wednesday.

Funny Nickel, a brown colt by Wooden Nickel out of Funny, will be seeking a sweep of freshman races when he enters the starting gate for the six-furlong jaunt while carrying the Fairground's leading jockey Fred Ecoffey at 122 pounds.

The Frank Sillik-owned colt, trained by Louis Brandt, won the Kernel Stakes and the State Fair Futurity earlier this year.

In the Futurity, Funny Nickel led all the way to win by two lengths over Gem D.M. In doing so, he also beat Whirl a Miss and Artist Chance who are also entered for the stakes at 112.

But Funny Nickel will have to face a stiff challenge from Delbert Rathmann's Rideniron who has beaten him earlier this year at Ak-Sar-Ben.

But Funny Nickel then avenged that loss with a five-length victory over Rideniron during the Ak-Sar-Ben Futurity Stakes on June 23.

Rideniron was shipped in Monday from Denver where he has been racing.

John Rettele has been scheduled to ride both Rideniron and Lisa's Alone prior to the start of the race when a decision may be made about which one will carry an alternate jockey.

Overlooked by the crowd of 5,142, Little Sac returned $25.20, $9.40 and $4.60 while Bebers Image brought home $7.80 and $4.60. Rocket Burst paid $3.40 to show.

Little Sac toured the six furlongs in 1:13 4-5 — well off the track standard of 1:11 set by The First Visit in 1970.

Anderson also rode Jerrys Royal ($25.20) to the winner's circle in the second and Steady Fire ($13.00) to the wire in the fifth.

AUNT PRISCILLA LOSES AGAIN

It certainly hasn't been a good year for your dear old Aunt Priscilla. I've apparently suffered my first losing season in three years, but I've still had a good time at the Fairgrounds.

Aunt Priscilla Loses $4.00

I sure do wish they'd build a new plant, though. They had a couple of accidents that might have been avoided, but I'm not enough of an expert to know for sure.

Tuesday, I lost $2 when Happy Vie ran third in the sixth them almost cired when Shedrow Beau was nipped at the wire in the eighth to drop my $120 spreed fund to $75.60.

Well, I'll try to end the season with two winners by placing $2 to win on Baca Battler in the second and Burgundy Street in the sixth for my final wagers of the year.

Wildcats Work On Ground Game

Manhattan, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas State football team had a one-hour controlled scrimmage Tuesday working mostly on getting the ground game working, coach Vince Gibson said.

Gibson said the scrimmage was an important one for Clarington, who missed last season and spring practice due to a knee injury. He said he was pleased with Clarington's performance and the way the knee held up.

Creighton Signs 9 Baseballers

Omaha (UPI) — Creighton baseball coach Dave Baker said Tuesday the signing of nine prospects to national letters of intent has climaxed what he considers "an outstanding recruiting year for our program."

The nine include:

Cyclones Open Grid Practices

. . . GOAL TO IMPROVE MARK

Ames, Iowa (UPI) — Iowa State football coach Johnny Majors has vowed that the Cyclones will make an ambitious bid for the Big Eight championship this year as the team prepares to improve on its 1971 record which was the best at the school since 1906.

Majors, opening his fifth season at the Ccylone helm, will assemble 99 prospective players here Wednesday to begin plotting strategy to dump powerhouses Nebraska, Colorado and Oklahoma along with other conference foes.

At a pre-season news conference, Majors said the team "cannot be satisfied with 1971," a season that produced an 8-3 regular season mark and a bid to the Sun Bowl against Louisiana State.

Majors said his Cyclones will be in the running for the conference title this season, but marked his quest for a championship as the top priority.

"That goal might not be reached this year or next, but we are going to start working in that direction as though this is the year."

"All of us — players, coaches, fans — still have to put it all together and bring a Big Eight title to Iowa State. There's nothing I would like better.

"But we have a big job ahead of us, one that is going to take every bit of dedication and hard work we possess."

Majors said he is "very pleased" that some forecasters have rated the Cyclones high this season because of the 1971 showing, but warned that the team must "prove everything all over again and do it better. To be satisified with what we did a year ago would really mean falling back."

Majors said his team must win the same games they won in the conference last year and also break up the "Big Three" powerhouse. However, he said the major rebuilding will be to construct and offense around quarterback George Amundson.

Smith To St. Louis

St. Louis, Mo. (UPI) — The St. Louis football Cardinals announced Tuesday they have acquired defensive end Donnell Smith from the Green Bay Packers for an undisclosed draft choice.

San Diego, Calif. (AP) — The new San Diego entry in the American Basketball Association may drop the name Conquistadors in the face of adverse public reaction, says general manager Alex Groza

Big-Game Hunters Required To Don Orange

Nebraska's autumn landscape has always been a kaliedescope of colors but, a bright new hue will be apparent this fall when the state's deer and antelope hunters take to the field.

The new color is hunter orange, which has become required equipment for all big-game hunters using firearms to take their quarry.

A new law passed by the last session of the Unicameral prescribes at least 400 square inches of the flourescent material to be worn on the back, head, and chest. According to the Game and Parks Commission, whose conservation officers will be enforcing the law, the headgear must be either a cap that is made entirely of the material, or a hat with a three-inch wide headband of hunter orange.

The hunter orange law was prompted by a pair of fatal accidents during last year's deer season, when the victims were shot by gunners who mistock them for game. It became apprent that, for safety's sake, hunters should be as visible as possible when afield, and the material prescribeed by the law is almost impossible to miss in the field.

Prior to 1971, Nebraska had never experienced a fatal firearm accident during its deer or antelope seasons.

Nebraska's firearm antelope hunters still have plenty of time to get their new orange gear for the season opener on September 23.

BATTERIES INSTALLED FREE

IMMEDIATE REPLACEMENT BATTERY GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees this battery to be free from defects in material and workmanship. If this battery fails to hold a charge Montgomery Ward will: 1. For 90 days from purchase, replace the battery free. 2. After 90 days, to the end of the guarantee period specified, replace the battery, charging a prorated amount—based on time since purchase—of the regular no trade-in selling price then in effect. Batteries used in commercial vehicles are guaranteed on a similar prorata basis for half of the normally specified term. For service under this guarantee, return battery with evidence of date of purchase to any Montgomery Ward branch.

WARDS RIVERSIDE® LIFETIME SUPREME MUFFLER REPLACEMENT GUARANTEE

For as long as you own the car on which installed, Montgomery Ward will furnish a free replacement for any Riverside Supreme Muffler which fails for any reason. If Montgomery Ward originally installed the muffler, it will install the replacement free. Return muffler to any Montgomery Ward branch (any branch having installation facilities, if free installation included) with evidence of purchase. This guarantee does not apply to mufflers installed on commercial vehicles or to mufflers damaged in an auto accident.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance Prorated on
40,000 miles	Miles Driven
45 month	$13.00
40 month	10.00
39 month	8.00
36 month	6.00
33 month	5.00
30 month	4.00
24 month	3.00

New York — Nearly 140 million individual policyholders,or almost seven out of 10 people in the country, were insured with life insurance companies at the start of 1971.

Teacher Shortage May Shut St. Peter School

Fullerton (AP) — With less than a week before school opens, there is some doubt whether St. Peter Elementary School in Fullerton will be in operation.

St. Peter has approximately 112 youngsters in grades one through eight who will be affected by the decision.

Norbert Wozny, president of the school board, said "not enough teachers are returning to the school' 'which has a normal staff of one lay teacher and three nuns.

The school was promised three nuns, Wozny said, but only two were sent by the Motherhouse of the Sisters of Resurrection in Chicago.

Sister Annetten principal of St. Peter's said she had received no notification of a decision either from the board or from the Rev. Richard Cierej, pastor of St. Peter's Church.

There were reports that the board and church council favor closing the school, but those who attended a meeting of those groups Monday declined to be quoted.

Father Cierej said any decision which may have been reached at such a meeting would be subject to the approval of the Most Rev. Daniel E. Sheehan, Archbishop of Omaha.

Archbishop Sheehan was out of the city and a spokesman in the chancery office said he had no information on the status of the Fullerton school

Blue Chips' Rise Lifts Stock Mart

"We're marching on toward 1,000 here," commented Lucien O. Hooper, analyst for W. E. Hutton & Co.

"The market's laying the foundation for an Indian summer rally," said Charles M. Lewis, a partner in Treves & Co.

Both analysts noted that investors were veering toward cyclical and traditional stocks now, as opposed to growth stock that were popular in the recent past.

They said this boded well for an assault on the elusive 1,000 mark of the Dow Jones industrial averages later this summer. The record close for the Dow blue-chip indicator was 995.15 registered in February 1966.

The Dow finished the session Tuesday ahead 6.32 at 973.51, as 18.57 million shares changed hands on the Big Board. Volume Monday was a slow 14.29 million shares.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index based on more than 1,400 common stocks set a new high for the second time in eight days at 61.85. The previous high, of 61.83 was recorded Monday, Aug. 14.

Of the 1,783 issues traded on the Big Board, 894 advanced, and 572 declined.

Oils again were among the most heavily traded issues, with Gulf Oil, up 5/8 to 26, on 258,900 shares, topping the active list, and Texaco up 1 to 35⅞ on 233,500 shares, the third-most-active issue.

Fannie Mae was the Big Board's second-most-active issues, closing up 1⅝ to 20⅝ on 242,900 shares.

Far Western Financial, up 1⅝ to 10⅞, registered the sharpest percentage gain on the Big Board, while LTV Corp. AA, down 2⅝ to 11½, sustained the biggest percentage loss. LTV reported second quarter operating net of $4.1 million Tuesday, compared with $9.1 million last year.

Among the large blocks traded on the Big Board were 200,900 shares of I-T-E Imperial at 41¾ and 132,000 shares of American General Insurance at 18¼. I-T-E Imperial closed down ½ at 42½ and American General was off ¼ to 18¼.

On the Amex, Champion Home Builders was the most-actively traded issue, closing down ½ at 17¾ on 208,400 shares, followed by Continental Telephone warrants, unchanged at 4⅞ on 144,400 shares, and Buttes Gas off 1⅝ to 21⅞ on 76,200 shares.

Cattle Price Drop Slows

Omaha (AP) — The fat cattle price plunge slowed up a bit at Omaha Tuesday as marketings in the Midland eased. However, the bearish grip was still firmly in control of the market as trading was never more than moderately active at best.

Steers sold steady to 50 lower and heifers mostly steady; unloads of all cattle here fell below 5,000, compared with 5,500 a week ago.

Hog prices broke rather sharply in continued reaction to recent run-ups and further setbacks in wholesale pork values. Butchers sold 50-75 lower and Dows 25-75 down.

Most 190-240 lb. barrows and gilts cleared 28.50-29.00, most at top figure on early rounds. Weights upward to 300 lbs. were in limited number and sold upward from 26.50. Sows grouped 24.75-26.50.

Fat lambs were steady, top-py No. 1 and 2 skins sold to 32.50, woolies 32.00 and down.

ISCO Merits Exporting Award

Instrumentation Specialties Co. of Lincoln (ISCO) has become the third Nebraska firm to receive the President's "E" award for excellence in exporting, it was announced Tuesday.

Rep. Charles Thone will present the award at 10 a.m. Monday at the ISCO plant at 4700 Superior.

It is being presented to ISCO in recognition of its very strong activity in the field of exporting — one third of the company's sales are in the foreign market.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

Sealed proposals will be received by the City Purchasing Agent, City of Lincoln, Nebraska until 1:30 P.M. Friday, September 1, 1972 for the furnishing of all labor, materials, equipment and services required for the remodeling of the Clubhouse located at Pioneer Golf Course in accordance with the Drawings and Specifications prepared by Arthur Duerschner, Architect, 427 Sharp Building, Lincoln, Nebraska. Proposals will be received in Room B-367 of the City County Building, Lincoln, Nebraska and will be opened and read immediately following the time for receipt of the proposals in the City Council Room. Proposals received after the scheduled closing time will be returned unopened.

The Owner will receive one proposal for the remodeling of the Building and shall award one contract for the work. This proposal shall include the cost of the General Work, the Plumbing Work, the Electrical Work, the Heating and Air Conditioning Work, the Kitchen and Restaurant equipment.

All proposals shall be made on Proposal Forms which shall be sent in duplicate to all Contractors who have indicated an interest in making proposals for this work. A copy of the Proposal Form is a part of and is included in the bound Specification.

Plans may be inspected at the Lincoln Builders Bureau, Omaha Builders Exchange, the Office of the Park Department, and the Office of the Architect.

Contractors who wish to bid on the work may obtain a printed set of the Drawings and Specifications for their individual use by applying to the Architect.

The General Contractor awarded the contract for the work shall be required to furnish a Performance and Material Payment Bond in the full amount of the contract.

Each bid shall be accompanied by an acceptable Bid Bond or Certified check payable to the City of Lincoln, Lincoln, Nebraska in the amount of five per cent (5%) of the total bid submitted as a guarantee that, if awarded the contract, the bidder will promptly enter into a contract and execute such bonds as may be required. If bid security is not received with the Proposal, the bid will not be considered.

All bids shall remain in effect for a period of 30 days after the schedued closing time for receipt of proposals for this work. The City of Lincoln reserves the right to reject any or all proposals and to waive any informality in any proposal.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
